System name: Participant waiting list for projects serving severely handicapped children and youth. HEW E OE.

Security classification: None.

System location: See Appendix II.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Severely handicapped children and youth waiting to be included in services provided by project.

Categories of records in the system: Name, address, and telephone numbers of children and youth; student educational, social, psychological and relevant medical information.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Education of the Handicap Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: To State and local educational agencies for coordinating services to potential participants; to other relevant State and local public and private agencies providing services to such potential participants, for coordination of services; to members of the project advisory boards and parent-teacher type organizations for coordinating and augmenting services to potential participants. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Information is in folders and stored in file cabinets.

Retrievability: Filed alphabetically by potential student surname. Records are cross indexed with listings of students by county/district. Records are available to project staff involved in planning for services to be provided.

Safeguards: Direct access is restricted to authorized project staff; access to room in which file cabinets are maintained is limited during non-working hours to those with keys to room. Exception: subject to disclosure requirements of Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Student files are maintained in potential student category until the enrollment of a student, or for two years following possible enrollment age of student. Disposal—records put into trash.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Special Services Branch/BEH
Room 4046 Donohoe Building
400 Maryland Avenue, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Notification procedure: System manager; for general inquiries, provide name and possible matriculation date of student. Address is project director as cited in Appendix II.

Record access procedures: If an individual wishes to gain access to a record in this system, he or she should contact the system manager and provide information as described in the notification procedure above.

Contesting record procedures: If an individual wishes to change the content of a record in the system of records, he or she should contact the system manager with the information described above in the notification procedure, identify the specific items to be changed, and provide a written justification for the change.

System name: Participants in Workshops Concerning Severely Handicapped Children and Youth. HEW E OE.

Security classification: None.

System location:
Room 4046 Donohoe Building
400 Maryland Avenue, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Professionals and non-professionals attending BEH sponsored or supported national and regional workshops which deal with severely handicapped children and youth.

Categories of records in the system: Name and address of workshop participants.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: To national organizations of professionals working with severely handicapped children and youth for sharing of information and coordination of activities; to State and local educational agencies directing attention to this special field of services. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File Cabinet storage, paper files.

Retrievability: Indexed and filed by name of conference-workshop location of conference, and topic(s) discussed. Cross-indexed by name of participant in alphabetical listings.

Safeguards: Direct access is restricted to authorized program staff; access to room in which file cabinets are maintained is limited during non-working hours to those with HEW passes to building. Exception: Subject to the disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Workshop Participants files are maintained for two years following the completion of a conference/workshop. Disposal—records put into trash.

System manager(s) and address:
Chief, Special Services Branch/BEH
Room 4046 Donohoe Building
400 Maryland Avenue, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Notification procedure: System manager; for general inquiries, name and address of participant. Address is Program Officer, cited above.

Record access procedures: If an individual wishes to gain access to a record in this system, he or she should contact the system manager and provide information as described in the notification procedure above.

Contesting record procedures: If an individual wishes to change the content of a record in the system of records, he or she should contact the system manager with the information described above in the notification procedure, identify the specific items to be changed, and provide a written justification for the change.

Record source categories: Names and addresses obtained from the participants attending national or regional meetings concerning severely handicapped children and youth.

Security classification: None.

System location:
Room 3319-C, GSA—Regional Office Building No. 3
7th & D Streets, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Current and former participants in the Upward Bound Program.

Categories of records in the system: The student's: name, system identifier number, social security number, sex, date of birth, ethnoracial background, home address, dates of entry into and departure from Upward Bound, income eligibility data, need for program services, veteran's status, current enrollment status and grade level, high school and expected date of graduation, high school academic program and grade point average at times of and departure from the program, Scholastic Aptitude Test and American College Test Score data (if applicable), reason for leaving program, and postsecondary school enrollment data or reason for not pursuing a postsecondary education.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Title IV-A of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: For the routine uses set forth in Appendix B to 45 Code of Federal Regulations Part 5b. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are stored on magnetic tape files at OE's contractor site, 5185 MacArthur Blvd., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016.

Retrievability: Records are accessed primarily by a student number assigned by the Upward Bound computer system. Individual student information is used by program officers for program monitoring and for verifying student eligibility. Summary statistics, excluding any personal information, are produced to develop profile information regarding program participants for program evaluation, planning, and reporting purposes. Summary statistics concerning the postsecondary placement, enrollment and graduation of former participants are produced for project and program monitoring and evaluation. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of Privacy Act.

Safeguards: Only designated personnel are authorized to have access to the files.

Retention and disposal: Current records are maintained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:
Chief, Information Systems and Program Support Branch
Division of Student Services and Veterans Programs, BHCE
Room 3514, ROB-3
400 Maryland Avenue, S.W.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962, Section 2, Public Law 87-510 (22 U.S.C. 2601).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: To contractor providing billing and collection services for purposes of maintaining accurate and current records of participating students; to students who request a record of their account; to Internal Revenue Service and Immigration and Naturalization Service for purposes of skip-tracing lost borrowers; and to the General Accounting Office or the Department of Justice for legal action against delinquent borrowers and for the routine uses set forth in Appendix B to 45 Code of Federal Regulations Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in hard-copy filed in a lektriever and standard (locked) filed cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by individual name and OE identification number. Records are available to DPO staff involved in correspondence with Cuban refugee borrowers, contractor personnel if necessary and members of the Office of General Counsel. Records are available to Public Health Service for determinations on requests for medical postponement of repayment of loan or permanent and total disability.

Safeguards: Direct access is restricted to authorized program officials and contractor personnel. Physically safeguarded by use of lektriever and standard file cabinets which are locked during nonworking hours. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Records maintained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Division of Program Operations
Room 4636, GSA - Regional Office Building
7th & D Streets, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Notification procedure: System manager (see above) will respond to inquiries. Inquiries must contain system identification number and system name; name and address of borrower concerned; and date of previous correspondence, if any.

Record access procedures: If an individual wishes to gain access to a record in this system, he or she should contact the system manager and provide information as described in the notification procedure above.

Contesting record procedures: If an individual wishes to change the content of a record in the system of records, he or she should contact the system manager with the information described above in the notification procedure, identify the specific items to be changed, and provide a written justification for the change.

Record source categories: Original information is submitted by the institution's program director who obtains it directly from the individual students; additional information in the case of requests for hardship postponements or cancellations on the grounds of total and permanent disability is obtained from the student, a doctor and/or a hospital; and if a borrower dies before completion of repayment, proof of death is obtained from appropriate source.

System name: National Defense Direct Student Loan Program—Request for Cancellation of Loan on Ground of Permanent and Total Disability. HEW E OE.

Security classification: None.

System location:

Room 4007 GSA - Regional Office Building
7th and D Streets, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Student borrowers under the National Defense Direct Student Loan Program requesting loan cancellation because of permanent and total disability.

Categories of records in the system: Information on borrowers requesting disability cancellation of loans includes name, address, Social Security number, medical records, name and address of lending institution, and other information needed to process such cancellation requests.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Title IV-E of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: For the routine uses set forth in Appendix B to 45 Code of Federal Regulations Part 5b. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records in hard copy form are maintained in standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are accessed by individual's name only. Program officials use the records to secure appropriate information on which the Commissioner of Education may make a determination to cancel a National Defense Direct Student Loan for reasons of permanent and total disability. Public Health Service physicians serve as the Program's Medical Review Board to make final determinations as to the validity of claims.

Safeguards: Only program officials are authorized to have access to the files. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: The file is a cumulative one. To date, all individual case records are maintained as initially filed; none have been deleted, removed, or stored elsewhere.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Division of Program Operations
Room 4636 ROB
7th and D Streets, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Notification procedure: System manager will respond to inquiries as to whether the system contains an individual's record. Inquiries must contain system identification number and system name; name and address of borrower concerned; and date of previous correspondence if any.

Record access procedures: If an individual wishes to gain access to a record in this system, he or she should contact the system manager and provide information as described in the notification procedure above.

Contesting record procedures: If an individual wishes to change the content of a record in the system of records, he or she should contact the system manager with the information described above in the notification procedure, identify the specific items to be changed, and provide a written justification for the change.

Record source categories: Information is submitted by the borrower requesting cancellation and by his physician(s), through the lending institution.

System name: Basic Grant Application File. HEW-E OE.

Security classification: None.

System location:

Room 4920
GSA-Regional Office Building No. 3
Washington, D.C. 20202

Basic Grant Processing Center
Iowa City, Iowa 52240

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Students applying for and receiving Basic Grant assistance.

Categories of records in the system: Name, address, birthdate, Social Security number, and financial data necessary to identify applicants and calculate their eligibility index for Basic Grants.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Title IV-A, of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Identifying information and eligibility index of applicants is provided to those institutions of postsecondary education in which the applicants plan to enroll or are enrolled. The same data are provided to State scholarship agencies having agreements with the Commissioner for purposes of coordinating State aid with the Basic Grant Program. On request, information is provided to Members of Congress who inquire on behalf of a constituent and for the routine uses set forth in Appendix B to 45 Code of Federal Regulations Part 5b. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Original applications are maintained in standard file cabinets in Basic Grant processing center. Micro-fiche records are maintained in Washington office in standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name of applicant with a cross-index file by Social Security number. Records are available to all Division of Basic and State Student Grant staff (including appropriate contract support).

Safeguards: Only designated program officials and contract staff have access to file. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Original records are maintained until end of academic year and then stored in Federal Records Center.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Division of Program Operations
Room 4636, ROB-3
400 Maryland Avenue, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20202

Notification procedure: If an individual wishes to determine whether a record exists for him or her in the system of records, the individual should provide to the system manager his or her name and social security number.

Record access procedures: If an individual wishes to gain access to a record in this system, he or she should contact the system manager and provide information as described in the notification procedure above.

Contesting record procedures: If an individual wishes to change the content of a record in the system of records, he or she should contact the system manager with the information described above in the notification procedure, identify the specific items to be changed, and provide a written justification for the change.

Record source categories: Information may be provided directly to the Office of Education by applicants, or, at the request of an applicant, may be provided by the following agencies:

American College Testing Program
Iowa City, Iowa 52240

Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17102

Educational Testing Service
Princeton, New Jersey 08540

Berkeley, California 94701

The purpose of this approach is to permit students to apply for Basic Grant Assistance without being required to submit a Basic Grant Application, but instead to provide the data needed by the Basic Grant program on other forms by which they apply for State and/or institutional aid.

System name: Guaranteed Student Loan Program Collection Files. HEW E.

Security classification: None.

System location: See Appendix EOE 2.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Defaulted borrowers under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program by regional office.

Categories of records in the system: Name, address, social security number, postsecondary school, student application, collection and repayment history with both lender and Office of Education, skip tracing information, borrower's financial ability and willingness to pay, claim for insurance reimbursement, disclosures, forebearance and deferment documents, promissory notes; correspondence between lender and borrower, borrower and OE, borrower and school, OE and school, and between OE and relatives; collector's notes, Department of Motor Vehicles reports, IRS listing of last known address, and reports of credit investigations.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Higher Education Act of 1965, Title IV-B, as amended (20 USC 1071-1087-4).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The information may be furnished to Federal, State, or local agencies, to private parties such as relatives, present and former employers, business and personal associates, to guarantee agencies, to educational and financial institutions, and to agency contractors, in order to verify the identity of the applicant, to determine program eligibility and benefits, to permit servicing or collecting of the loan, to counsel the borrower in repayment efforts, to investigate possible fraud and verify compliance with program regulations, or to locate a delinquent or defaulted borrower. To computer contractors for issuance of computerized collection letters; to credit company contractors for skip tracing, in-file history information, assets and ability to pay; to U.S. Internal Review Service for last known address; to U.S. Postal Service for last known address; to U.S. General Accounting Office for possible pre-litigation collection service; to U.S. Department of Justice for possible legal action; to U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation in performance of investigation into possible fraud cases; to State Department of Motor Vehicles for last known address; to State Bureaus of Vital Statistics for verification of death; to mortgage companies for credit checks, to educational agencies or institutions against which a complaint has been made; to other guaranteed student loan lenders making inquiries concerning the defaulted students who may have been denied additional loans; to other Federal agencies requesting information as to the repayment history of the defaulted account; to General Accounting Office for discharge of authorized functions and routine uses as set forth in Appendix B 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 103, 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 5 B. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Paper files; stored in file cabinets.

Retrievability: By name. Records are available to GSLP staff for administration of collection responsibilities, used as feeder information in skip tracing, available to HEW Auditors for possible audit, to HEW Counsels on resolving legal questions, to HEW Investigator for investigation of fraud possibilities.

Safeguards: Records are stored in locked file cabinets or in locked rooms after working hours with access by authorized agency personnel. Exception: subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained five (5) years beyond the closing of the case. Disposal by maceration.

System manager(s) and address: See Appendix EOE 2.

Notification procedure: See System manager; address as indicated in Appendix EOE 2, inquiries should be addressed to the System Manager in the region in which the inquirer resides (e.g. Florida resident will address Region IV System Manager). Provide System ID number and System name. Also provide the name, address and social security number of the individual inquiring about his/her record.

Record access procedures: Contact system manager.

Contesting record procedures: Contact system manager.

Record source categories: From the original lender, student loan application, school attended and the student borrower.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

System name: Participants in ESEA Title VII Bilingual Education Program National Impact Evaluation of Elementary Programs—HEW/E.

Security classification: None.

System location:

P.O. Box 1113
1791 Arastradero Road
Palo Alto, California 94302

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Elementary school students in grades 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 during school year 1975-76 (and possibly 1976-77) in schools participating in the evaluation of ESEA Title VII bilingual elementary programs.

Categories of records in the system: Name, school, grade, name of teacher, school district, scores of pre- and/or post tests in English language, Spanish language, and mathematics, and attitudes/motivation.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 417 of the General Education Provisions Act as amended (20 USC 1226b) and Section 731(c) of the Bilingual Education Act (20 USC 880 b-10c).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: For use 9 in Appendix B of the Departmental Regulations (45 CFR 5b). Student achievement test scores to appropriate school districts for their own internal project evaluation. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained on paper and on magnetic tape and are stored in locked metal filing cabinets.

Retrievability: Student name and ID number are kept in one file. In a separate file, the data base itself is kept; data are indexed by Student ID number only. These data contain further identifiers based on district, school building, grade and classroom. A separate file will indicate what kinds of data were collected on the total student population at different points in time. The data base file consists of computer tapes. Test instruments will be kept stored separately, indexed by type of data, district, school building, grade and classroom. Retrieval by Contractor for purposes of analysis and further data collection. Retrieval may be done by Contractor for System Manager for purposes consistent with this evaluation and the Privacy Act.

Safeguards: The student name and ID number "link" file is kept separately from the data base. Access to this file, which is kept under lock, is restricted to the data base manager and to senior project staff, i.e., the project director and the principal investigator. The "link" file will be utilized only during the data-collection and data-analysis phases and will be destroyed once the data analysis for the study has been completed. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act. Before any data are released by the Contractor to the Government, not only will the link file be destroyed, but entirely new randomly assigned code numbers will be applied to each student data record. It will be done in such a way that not even the district from which the student's record comes will be identifiable. This will eliminate any possible remaining connection between student name on the one hand and the student records provided to the Government on the other hand.

Retention and disposal: All data will be destroyed upon completion of contract requirements. Paper files will be destroyed by maceration and magnetic tapes will be erased.

System name: Training and Development Awards for Vocational Education Personnel—Applications and Awards. HEW E.

Security classification: None.

System location:
ROB No. 3, Room 5652
Washington, D.C. 20202

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons who wish to participate in Federal vocational education fellowship programs and who voluntarily submit personal information.

Categories of records in the system: Name, address, phone number, date of birth, sex, educational background, employment background, educational transcript, references, test scores, minority group membership, ability to meet national needs, professional organization membership, State Board recommendations, communication skills; for Leadership Development Awards, special leadership qualifications, management skills, leadership potential; for Teacher Certification Awards, certification requirements, certification status, human relations skills, and vocational skills.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Vocational Education Act of 1963, Title I, Part B, Subpart 2, Section 172, as amended by the Education Amendments of 1976, P.L. 94-482, Title II.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: For routine uses set forth in Appendix B to 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 5b, numbers one through nine; for Field Readers for the purposes of determining eligibility and recommending awardees; selected data for developing brochures describing the fellows and their career goals for public information purposes; and to congressional offices in response to inquiries from those offices made at the request of individuals on whom records are kept. A copy of the application is forwarded for review purposes to the institution of higher education to which the awardee is assigned and to the State Board of the State in which the applicant resides. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to affect directly the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent the employee, the Department may disclose the records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent the party, provided the disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in hard-copy, filed in locked standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are accessed by individual names only by authorized OE staff and Field Readers for the purposes of: determining eligibility; selecting fellows; establishing allowances for stipends, dependents, tuition, and other expenses; determining continued eligibility; and developing profile information regarding recipients of fellowships for program evaluation, planning, reporting and publicity purposes.

Safeguards: Direct access is restricted to authorized OE staff.

Retention and disposal: Records on fellowship holders are sent to the Federal Records Center six months after final payment. They are destroyed by the Federal Records Center three years after final payment. Records on alternates are maintained for two years for Teacher Certification Awards and three years for Leadership Development Awards. They are then sent to the Federal Records Center where they are destroyed one year later. Application forms from applicants not selected as fellows or alternates are returned to the applicant. Other records on these applicants, containing information on the selection procedure, are maintained for one year and then destroyed.

System name: NIE Outside Experts. HEW E—NIE.

Security classification: None.

System location:
Room 722, Brown Building
1200 19th Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20208

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who have been used as outside experts.

Categories of records in the system: Name, department or title, institution, address, institutional category, academic discipline, type of work, year of birth, academic degrees and experience of individuals who have been used as outside experts, together with task(s) performed.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 405(e)(1) of the General Education Provisions Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The data are used to prepare periodic lists of outside experts and the tasks they have performed and aggregate figures on categories of persons used. These lists and figures are used internally to monitor and improve NIE efforts to involve men and women covering a wide variety of institutions, disciplines, type of work, ethnic background, geographical location, and ages, in development and evaluation of its program. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in computer disc files, with printouts as appropriate.

Retrievability: These lists and figures may be released as a matter of public interest; lists of names that may be made public do not indicate sex or ethnicity of individuals.

Safeguards: Code number keys protect access to sensitive data. Exception: subject to disclosure requirements of Privacy Act.

System name: Compensatory Education Study. HEW-E-NIE.

Security classification: None.

System location: See Appendix A and Appendix B.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: The subjects are school children in the elementary and intermediate grades (1-9); parents of such children; teachers and paraprofessionals involved in compensatory education programs; administrators at the local, district, state, and federal levels and lawyers and auditors involved in Title I cases. Additionally, subjects include community leaders; other teachers and administrators (i.e., principals, superintendents, analysts, evaluators) at the local, district, state and federal levels; and persons in educational research, both past and currently.

Categories of records in the system: The records consist of data regarding children's involvement in compensatory education or other school programs, including background information and achievement data; parents', teachers' and other staffs' perceptions regarding education programs and their administration; administrators' perceptions and problems regarding compensatory education programs; and researchers' views, both empirically based and intuitive.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sec. 821 of the Education Amendments of 1974 (P. L. 93-380).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The records will be available to contractors for services and analysis by authorized personnel. Achievement and other program data in personally-identifiable form will be available only to the school in which it was collected for purposes of planning and evaluation by school personnel. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained on disc, tape, IBM cards, and in hard copy filed in standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: The records are indexed by age, grade, agency, geographic location, time sequence, topics, codes, or ID number. They will be used for reporting purposes or statistical research, in a non-personally identifiable format.

Safeguards: The records are safeguarded by permission and involvement of parents, teachers, administrators, and researchers. Names of individuals are primarily stored separately from the records and are accessible only to authorized personnel. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: The records are maintained indefinitely.

System name: Medicare Second Surgical Opinion Experiments, HEW/HCFA/OPPR.

Security classification: None.

System location: Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York, 622 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017, and 3 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016, and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, 600 Lafayette East, Detroit, Mich. 48226.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Physicians who practice, and Medicare beneficiaries who reside in the carrier area of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of greater New York (plus Queens) or in Macomb, Oakland, or Wayne Counties for which the Medicare carrier is Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan.

Categories of records in the system: Physicians: personal identification and demographic data.

Beneficiaries: personal identification, demographic data, and health status information pertinent to advisability of patient undergoing elective surgery.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 402(a) of the 1967 Amendments to the Social Security Act, as amended by section 222(b)(1) of the 1972 Amendments to the Social Security Act, Pub. L. 92-603.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purpoees of such uses:

(a) Blue Cross and Blue Shield of greater New York and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan will use the data to: (1) operate referral centers to help eligible Medicare beneficiaries locate consultants and obtain second/third opinions, (2) collect information necessary to conduct referral operations and evaluate the impact of the program, and (3) modify claims processing systems to permit waiver of co-payment and deductible requirements under part B of Medicare on all second/third surgical opinion claims (i.e., physician and ancillary service costs). The Office of Policy, Planning, and Research (OPPR), HCFA, will use the information to coordinate all data collection, reimbursement, and evaluation activities. HCFA will contract via request for proposals with an independent third party which will use data in the system to evaluate the impact of the second surgical opinion programs.

(b) disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(c) In event of litigation where one of the parties is: (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Hardcopy intake forms, first opinion physician/surgeon reports and consultants' reports will be stored in locked metal file cabinets in the referral centers established within the contractors' carrier offices. Completed data tapes created from hardcopy forms will be stored in the tape libraries maintained by the contractors for storage of routine Medicare claims tapes and subject to the same security precautions.

Retrievability: Hardcopy stored in referral centers will be retrievable by beneficiary name. Beneficiary information stored on tape will be retrievable by beneficiary name and health insurance claim number; provider information stored on tape will be retrievable by physician name and provider number.

Safeguards: All records will be retained in secure storage areas accessible only to authorized employees of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, and the evaluation contractor staff. All employees having access to records have been notified of criminal sanctions for unauthorized disclosure of information on individuals. After the hardcopy and tapes are validated and analyzed by the evaluation contractor, they will be returned to HCFA and retained in secure storage areas until December 31, 1987. At this time, hardcopy collection forms will be destroyed and the tapes will be erased by degaussiang.

For computerized records, where appropriate, ADP systems security procedures will be instituted with reference to guidelines contained in DHEW Information Processing Standards Publication 3 (IPS PUB 3) and the National Bureau of Standards Federal Information Processing Standards Publications (FIPS PUB 41 and FIPS PUB 31) (e.g., use of password access). By taking all the aforementioned precautions, we have reduced the risk of unauthorized access to a minimum.

Retention and disposal: Hardcopy data collection forms and magnetic data tapes with identifiers will be retained in secure storage areas. The disposal technique of degaussing will be used to strip magnetic tape of all identifying names and numbers in December 1987. Hardcopy will be destroyed at this time.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Office of Policy, Planning and Research Health Care Financing Administration Room 5054, HEW South Building 330 C Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201.

Notification procedure: Any physician or Medicare beneficiary who participates in this demonstration as a provider or recipient of service may request his data record in writing. This request should be addressed to the system manager. To obtain data on physicians, the requestor should provide the name and business address of the physician; to obtain data on a Medicae beneficiary, the requestor should provide the beneficiary's name and home address.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requestor should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. These access procedures are in accordance with Department regulations (45 CFR, section 5b.5(a)(2).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the system manager at the address specified under notification procedure above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, section 5b.7)

Record source categories: Referral Center Intake Forms are completed by a referral center analyst upon receiving a call from a Medicare beneficiary requesting a second opinion under the demonstrations. First Opinion Physician/Surgeon Report Forms are completed by the first opinion physician in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan demonstration and by the first surgeon in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York demonstration. The consultant's report is completed by second/third opinion consultants who are participating in the demonstrations.

Categories of records in the system: Patient's medical information, including mental health treatment, objectives, and procedures.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 402(a) of the 1967 Amendments to the Social Security Act, as amended by Section 222(b)(1) of the 1972 Amendments to the Social Security Act, P.L. 92-603.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (a) To the Colorado Psychological Association, peer review consultants, and Blue Shield of Colorado, under contract with the Social Security Administration, for the performance of research and statistical functions, and to an organization under contract with the Social Security Administration and consultants to the organization for the evaluation of the peer review process in compliance with the conditions of the agreement. (b) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual. (c) In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively respresent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Stored in a locked filing cabinet.

Retrievability: By name and health insurance claim number.

Safeguards: All records will be locked up when not in use. Only authorized personnel of Colorado Blue Shield and the Colorado Psychological Association will be granted access to the documents. Colorado Blue Shield currently reviews and processes all Part B Medicare claims in Colorado, and will apply similar safeguards to the records in this system.

Retention and disposal: All materials will be retained until December 31, 1980. All identifiable material will then be destroyed.

Notification procedure: Provide the system manager with the name of the system, and the name, home address, and health insurance claim number of the person requesting notification. An individual who requests notification of or access to a medical record shall, at the time the request is made, designate in writing a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. (These notification and access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR Sections 5b.5 and 5b.6)

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR Sections 5b.5 and 5b.6)

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under SYSTEM MANAGER above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR Section 5b.7) Record source categories: Provider records collected from the subject individuals by the participating psychologist.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

09-70-0003

System name: Lump-Sum Reimbursement Method for Physician Extenders Delivering Independent Medicare Services, HEW/HCFA/OPPR.

Security classification: None.

System location: Health Services Studies Branch (HSSB), Division of Direct Reimbursement (DDR), Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), 6401 Security Boulevard, Baltimore, Md. 21235.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Physicians, physician extenders, and Medicare beneficiaries who participate in the physician Extender Reimbursement Study.

Categories of records in the system: Demographic, economic and patient care data involving Medicare covered services delivered by a physician extender.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 402(a) of the 1967 Amendments to the Social Security Act, as amended by Section 222(b)(1) of the 1972 Amendments to the Social Security Act, Pub. L. 92-603. This amendment adds section 402(a)(1)(C), which authorizes PE reimbursement experimentation.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (a) The Division of Direct Reimbursement (DDR), HCFA, will act as a carrier making reimbursement to physician practices. The Office of Policy, Planning, and Research (OPPR), HCFA, coordinates all baseline data collection, reimbursement, and evaluation activities. System Sciences, Inc. (SSI) is under contract with HCFA for the performance of validation and evaluation functions.

(b) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(c) In event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her offical capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessaary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: During the operational phase of the experiment, hard copy cost forms will be kept in secure storage spaces. Completed data tapes will be maintained in secure storage areas in the tape library in HCFA.

Retrievability: Records are retrievable in the following manner: Beneficiary information by health insurance claim number; physician information by provider number and practice number; physician extender information by PE identification number.

Safeguards (access controls): All records will be retained in secure storage areas accessible only to authorized persons within the offices of DDR and OPPR. All employees having access to records have been notified of criminal sanctions for unauthorized disclosure of information on individuals. After the magnetic tapes are prepared for validation and evaluation by SSI, they are to be returned to HCFA and retained in secure storage areas until December 31, 1982. At this time hard copy collection forms will be destroyed and the magnetic data tapes will be erased by degaussing.

For computerized records, where apppropriate, ADP systems security procedures will be instituted with reference to guidelines contained in DHEW Information Processing Standards Publication 3 (IPS PUB 3) and the National Bureau of Standards Federal Information Processing Standards Publications (FIPS PUB 41 and FIPS PUB 31) (e.g., use of password access). By taking all the aforementioned precautions, we have reduced the risk of unauthorized access to a minimum.

Retention and disposal: Hard copy cost collection forms and magnetic data tapes with identifiers will be retained in secure storage areas. The disposal technique of degaussing will be used to strip magnetic tape of all identifying names and numbers in December 1982.

Room 3-E-6
Meadows East Building
Baltimore, Maryland 21235

Office of the Contractor, Exotech Research & Analysis, Inc.
1200 Quince Orchard Boulevard Gaithersburg, Maryland 20760

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Medical Part B Beneficiaries acquiring durable medical equipment (DME) under Title XVIII of the Social Security Act. Geographic locations are to be determined on contract award date.

Categories of records in the system: Administrative, billing, and descriptive information involving the purchase and/or rental of durable medical equipment under Title XVIII (Medicare Part B).

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 245 of Public Law 92-603 (Social Security Amendments of 1972).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Routine disclosure of the records maintained in the system will be made to an organization under contract with the Social Security Administration for the performance of the research and statistical functions as prescribed by the contract. The data collected will be utilized by the Contractor for statistical purposes in determining the results of the experimental program. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic computer tape.

Retrievability: To be specified by Contractor. (Most probable idex will be individual Health Insurance Account Number and Part B Medicare Carrier Code Number.)

Safeguards: Magnetic computer tapes are to be kept in GSA approved containers with combination locks. The containers are to be located in a controlled access area where all nonemployees and nonauthorized personnel must identify themselves, state the nature of their business, and be logged in before gaining entry. All employees of the Contractor are subject to the penalties prescribed by the Privacy Act for unauthorized disclosure of personnel data. These safeguards are in accordance with Departmental standards limiting access to authorized personnel only.

Retention and disposal: All raw data, draft reports, correspondents, and reports generated during this experiment (including tapes, computer programs, position indices, etc.) shall be the property of the Government and shall be delivered to the SSA Project Officer not later than 15 calendar days after contract completion date. Should the Project Officer request any of the above-mentioned material during the conduct of the experiment, the Contractor shall present such material to the Project Officer within 30 days of a written request. The material presented by the Contractor shall be as current as possible, relevant to the request. All tapes and final reports will be delivered to the Social Security Administration and will be retained by the Social Security Administration as long as necessary for program purposes.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Sample of aged (since 1966) and disability (since 1971) beneficiaries entitled to Medicare, and interview status.

Categories of records in the system: Demographic characteristics; health services (types and costs) used by Medicare beneficiaries, and interview status.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 1875 of the Social Security Act. (42 USC Sec. 1395LL).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosures from this system are made to the Bureau of the Census when it performs as a collecting agent or data processor for research and statistical purposes directly relating to the Social Security Act. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: All records are stored on magnetic tape and disk files. Hard copies of the interview forms through 1974 were placed on microfilm. Starting with 1975, hard copies of the interview forms will be retained for 4 years. Interview status check-in cards and tapes and disk files are also stored. Microfilm and magnetic tapes are in secured storage at SSA. Check-in cards and tapes are stored in file cabinets.

Retrievability: All interview records are identified by health insurance claim number.

Safeguards: Initial collection and processing performed by the Census Bureau. For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g. security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Through 1974, hard copy was routinely destroyed six months after the record was placed on microfilm. Starting with 1975, hard copy will be retained for 3 years, and upon receipt of the fourth year data, the earliest year will be destroyed. Computer and card records and interview status check-in cards and tapes are maintained with identifiers as long as needed for purposes of program research. All records are reviewed annually for continued program need.

(h) Professional Standards Review Organization for utilization review (PSRO).

(i) State Licensing Boards for review of unethical practices or nonprofessional conduct.

(j) Providers and suppliers of services directly or dealing through fiscal intermediaries or carriers for administration of provisions of the title XVIII.

(k) Contractors under contract to the Health Care Financing Administration and the Social Security Administration for the performance of research and statistical activities directly relating to the Social Security Act.

(l) State welfare departments pursuant to agreements with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for administration of State supplementation payments for determinations of eligibility for Medicaid, for enrollment of welfare recipients for medical insurance under section 1843 of the Social Security Act, for quality control studies, for determining eligibility of recipients of assistance under titles IV and XIX of the Social Security Act, and for the complete administration of the Medicaid program.

(m) A congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office at the request of that individual.

(n) State audit agencies in connection with the audit of Medicaid eligibility considerations.

(o) In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(p) Peer review groups, consisting of members of State, county, or local medical societies or medical care foundations (physicians), appointed by the medical society or foundation at the request of the carrier to assist in the resolution of questions of medical necessity, utilization of particular procedures or practices, or overutilization of services with respect to Medicare claims submitted to the carrier.

(q) Physicians and other suppliers of services who are attempting to validate individual items on which the amounts included in the annual Physician/Supplier Payment List are based.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records maintained on paper, tape, disc, and punchcards.

Retrievability: System is indexed by health insurance claim number. The record is prepared by the beneficiary and is used by carriers to determine amount of an entitlement to Part B benefits. The bills are retained by the carriers. Disclosures of physician's customary charge data are made to State audit agencies in order to ascertain the correctness of title XIX charges and payments.

Safeguards: Unauthorized personnel are denied access to the records area. Disclosure is limited.

Retention and disposal: Records are closed out at the end of the calendar year in which paid, held two additional years, transferred to Federal Records Center and destroyed after another 2 years.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Medicare Bureau,
6401 Security Boulevard,
Baltimore, Md. 21235.

Notification procedure: Inquiries and requests for system records should be addressed to the most convenient social security office, the appropriate carrier, the Medicare Bureau Regional Office, or to the Health Care Financing Administration, Medicare Bureau, Health Insurance Inquiries Branch, Baltimore, Md. 21235. The individual should furnish his or her health insurance claim number and the name as shown on social security records. An individual who requests notification of or access to a medical record shall, at the time the request is made, designate in writing a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. (These notification and access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.6).)

Record access procedures:

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.7).)

Record source categories: The data contained in these records is furnished by the individual. In most cases, the identifying information is provided to the physician by the individual. The physician then adds the medical information and submits the bill to the carrier for payment.

4) Disclosures may be made to: a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual; in accordance with the following numbered items in Appendix B of Department regulations (42 CFR Part 5b):

(101) To individuals and organizations, deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out specific research solely for the purpose of carrying out such research.

(102) To organizations deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out quality assessment, medical audits or utilization review. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic tape and disc, hard copy forms, microfilm (anticipated).

Retrievability:

HEW uses:

1) Uses: Program monitoring, planning and evaluation; support for clinical studies and infection control programs; validation of accuracy of reported information; respond to Congressional inquiries; budget preparation; support for local review Boards and ESRD Councils; support for quality of ESRD card review, support for patient rehabilitation programs; support for Federally operated dialysis and transplant services and programs.

2) Purpose: To meet statutory requirements of Sec. 2991, P.L. 92-603 and P.L. 95-292 and requirements of DHEW regulations and policies.

3) Users: All DHEW units involved in the operation, evaluation and support of the national ESRD program including; Health Services Administration, Health Resources Administration; Social Security Administration, Social and Rehabilitation Services; National Institutes of Health; Center for Disease Control.

4) Retrievability: Data indexed by Health Insurance Claim number, patient name and facility number. Individual patient and statistical data provided to Health Care Financing Administration, the National Institutes of Health and local Medical Review Boards, statistical data provided to other governmental units and the general public.

Safeguards: Restricted access to all areas where data are maintained and processed, hard copy data stored in locked files in secured area, terminal access controlled by user ID and keywords. Access to personal data restricted to those authorized to work with those data. For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g., security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Hard copy retained 1 year; all other information, indefinitely. Hard copy destroyed by shredding; all other information, to be determined.

Notification procedure: Same as system manager. An individual who requests notification of or access to a medical/dental record shall, at the time the request is made, designate in writing a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. (These notification and access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.6).)

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR Section 5b.5(a)(2).)

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.7).)

Record source categories: Applications for Medicare, ESRD benefits, patient records at ESRD treatment facilities, Health Care Financing Administration Medicare Master Files

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

System name: Medicare Beneficiary Claims for Emergency Services HEW, HCFA, MAB

Security classification: None.

System location:
Health Care Financing Administration
Medicare Bureau
Division of Special Operations
Reconsideration Branch
Baltimore, Md. 21235

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Medicare beneficiaries who file for Medicare Part A emergency claim reconsideration desiring coverage of nonparticipating hospital charges.

Categories of records in the system: Medical information and associated charge data.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Social Security Act Sections 1814 (d) and (f) (42 U.S.C. 1395F (d) and (f)).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made in accordance with Appendix B of the Departmental Regulations (45 CFR, Part 5b) item 3: In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File folders, log book—in emergency claims file drawers.

Retrievability:

HEW uses:

1) Uses: Track file folders (which include Medicare emergency claims with associated medical record information) received from and returned to Health Care Financing Administration, Medicare Bureau regional offices; maintain sufficient information to indicate the decisions and rationale to handle future inquiries and coordinate handling of subsequent claims by the same beneficiary for other emergency service claims; identify problems which can be corrected administratively. The Public Health Service regional offices handle the information file folders on initial consideration of the claims. Copies of documentation of case and claim decision are returned with the information file folders for both PHS and HCFA regional offices, to indicate the claim decision and justification for the decision.

2) Purpose: Determine whether services were medically necessary on an immediate emergency basis.

3) Users: Information is used by fiscal intermediaries for the Medicare Program to reimburse hospitals and beneficiaries. Both information files and the documentation of case and claim decision are used by Administrative Law Judges in cases of claims appeals.

4) Retrievability: Beneficiary name, health insurance claim number, name of hospital and dates of services appear in all categories of records (information file folders which include Medicare emergency claims with associated medical record information; documentation of case and claim decision; claims review status log), and are used to identify an individual's specific claim. All records are kept in the emergency claim file drawers. The information file folders and entries in the log are in the order of receipt in the office. The documentation of case and decision are alphabetized by name.

Safeguards: Records are in locked file drawers. Personnel are instructed on information confidentiality. Access to claim folders restricted to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Number of years held at HSA: information file folders are held one week to six months before being returned to originating source. Other records kept indefinitely. Number of years held at Federal Records Center before disposal: not applicable.

Professional Examination Service
New York, N. Y. 10029

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Cytotechnologists.

Categories of records in the system: Answer Sheets. Examination scores.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Social Security Act Sections 1123 (42 U.S.C. 1320a-2).

Uses outside HEW:
(1) Uses—Lists showing by States the names and addresses of individuals who passed or failed are sent to the HCFA Regional Director. They are instructed to make the lists available to the appropriate State Health Department. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual; and in accordance with item 3 in Appendix B of Department regulations (42 CFR Part 5b): In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.
(2) Purpose—These answer sheets indicate examination results and the lists indicate only pass or fail, and are used to advise an individual who failed the exam when the next examination will be given.
(3) Users—State Health Department.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Computer generated listings are filed by discipline, by State, in file folders.

Retrievability:
(1) Uses—Answer sheets are retained for revalidation and one record of all examinees is maintained for the purpose of responding to an individual examinee.
(2) Purpose—(1) Pass—To re-issue a new card to those who pass, for reasons they have lost their card, or have changed their name (upon written request). (2) Fail—To re-advise what their scores were by subject upon written request, or when they can take the next examination.
(3) Users—Systems Manager and project officers.
(4) Retrievability—Listings and answer sheets are by examination, State, examinee's name and address, and examination number.

Safeguards: Files are maintained in a combination lock file cabinet, in a locked room area. For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g., security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Lists are to be retained through FY 1979. They will then be filed at Federal Records Center for a period of three years. If at the expiration of that time the records are no longer of use, FRC will be authorized to destroy by incineration or shredding. Answer sheets are retained until completion of contract and then destroyed.

L. 93-579, disclosure of such information would reveal the identity of a source who provided information under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. (45 CFR 5b.11) Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) all material and information in this system of records about an individual that meet the criteria stated in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) are exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I); and (f) relating to access and contest, making an accounting of disclosure to the individual named in the record, maintenance of information in records, publication annually in the ————————————————, and provisions regarding agency rules in that portions of this system relate to testing and examination materials that are used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps. The specific material that is exempted is as follows:

a. Answer keys.
b. Ratings given for the purpose of validating examinations.
c. Rating sheets.
d. Rating schedules, including crediting plans.
e. Transmutation tables.
f. Test booklets.
g. Test item files. (45 CFR 5b.11)

System name: Health and Demographic Surveys Conducted in Probability Samples of the U.S Population HEW/OASH/NCHS.

Security classification: None.

System location:

Center Building
3700 East-West Highway
Hyattsville, Maryland 20782

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals and members of households selected by probability sampling techniques to be representative of the civilian noninstitutionalized population of the United States.

Categories of records in the system: Statistical records containing information on: (1) the incidence of illness and accidental injuries, prevalence of diseases and impairments, the extent of disability, the utilization and cost of health care services, and other health characteristics of individuals obtained in household interviews and from their named health care providers and insurers; or (2) the nutritional status, prevalence levels of specially defined chronic diseases, growth and development patterns and distributions of various health related measurements and related data obtained in a survey involving health examinations, tests, and other measurement procedures; or (3) marital and child bearing history and intended future births, the use of prenatal care, and the family planning practices of individual women obtained by interview. Demographic and socioeconomic characteristics such as age, marital status, education, occupation, and family income are also obtained for individuals in this system of statistical records.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act Section 306(b) (42 U.S.C. 242k).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The data are disseminated for purposes of statistical research and analysis outside HEW in forms which do not permit the identification of individuals, such as publications of statistical tables, specially requested tabulations, and public use computer tapes. These are communicated to interested persons outside HEW, such as members of Congress and their staffs, other executive branch agencies, universities, States, cities, private foundations, etc. The findings are used by demographers, sociologists, health statisticians, epidemiologists, other scholars and concerned citizens, to evaluate health matters, make determinations on needs for legislation, appropriations, new service programs, and the like.

The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating, or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records (45 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, item (9)):

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity, (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are transferred onto magnetic tapes without name and address information and are maintained on magnetic tapes for an indefinite period.

Retrievability: A serial number tied to the selection process of successively smaller geographic areas is assigned to each record on magnetic tape This serial number also appears on the original record. Each magnetic tape containing records in this system has a unique identification number and title. Original survey records are reviewed for accuracy, edited, and data (without personal identifiers such as name or SSN) are transferred to magnetic tape. Then the original records and/or microfilms are stored at the Federal Records Center. The tape is used for statistical purposes only. These uses include the preparation of aggregated data in the form of statistical tables for publication, analysis, and interpretation, to meet the legislative mandates of P.L. 93-353, to determine levels of illness and disability and their effects on the population, the use of health care facilities, trends in family formation and dissolution, and the like. Users consist of health planners, statisticians, epidemiologists, demographers, and others concerned with the problems of health and health care.

Safeguards: All employees of NCHS, as a condition of employment, sign an affidavit binding them to nondisclosure of identifiable individual information. Since the magnetic tapes have no name and address information, users of the tape could only identify specific individuals by relating the serial number on the tape to the original record. Only employees of NCHS are permitted access to the magnetic tapes with the serial numbers described above or to the files containing the original records or microfilms. Magnetic tapes with personal identifiers of individual records removed are made available for public use.

Retention and disposal: The original records are retained in office files of NCHS until the process of conversion to magnetic tape and verification of information is completed. This process is completed within approximately nine months. The original records are then sent to the Federal Records Center where they are stored for 5 years for interview survey records and 10 years for examination records. Microfilm copies of examination records are retained at the Federal Records Center for 40 years

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: With respect to this system of records, exemption has been granted from the requirements contained in subsections 552a(c)(3), (d)(1) through (4), and (e)(4)(G) and (H) in accordance with the provision of subsection 552a(k)(4) of the Privacy Act of 1974. The reason this system has been exempted is that this system contains only records required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records.

System name: Health Manpower Inventories and Surveys. HEW/OASH/NCHS.

Security classification: None.

System location:

Center Building
3700 East-West Highway
Hyattsville, Maryland 20782

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals trained in specific health occupation, such as dentists, nurses, pharmacists, optometrists, dental hygienists, and other providers of health care services.

Categories of records in the system: Statistical records containing information on educational attainment, place of education, activity status, place and setting of employment or practice, place of residence, date of birth, sex, and marital status.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act Section 306(b) (42 U.S.C. 242k).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The data are made available to Health Systems Agencies and the State Agency designated under P.L. 93-641 for statistical purposes only for developing and evaluating health plans and to the Bureau of Health Manpower for providing information and analyses that could be used in developing alternative strategies for the education of health manpower.

The data are also disseminated for purpose of statistical research and analysis outside DHEW in forms which do not permit the identification of individuals, such as publication of statistical tables, specially requested tables, and public use magnetic tapes. These are communicated to interested persons outside DHEW, such as members of Congress, other executive branch agencies, professional associations, universities, States, cities, private foundations, etc. The statistical summaries are used by health manpower researchers, legislators, statisticians and concerned citizens to evaluate the Nation's health manpower resources, make determinations on needs for legislation, new health manpower training program, and the like.

The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records (45 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, item (9)).

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are transferred onto magnetic tapes with name and address information and are maintained for an indefinite period.

Retrievability: Name and address, date of the inventory or survey, and other identifiers permit the retrieval of a computer record of the individual's information contained on magnetic tape. Original records of information are reviewed by the contractor and/or NCHS staff for accuracy, edited, and data with personal identifier (such as name and address) are transferred to magnetic tape. The records are then matched by personal identifiers to produce an unduplicated file of individuals in a health occupation. The original records are then stored at either the State licensing boards, with the health professions association, or at the NCHS data processing center in Research Triangle Park, North Carolina. The tape is used for statistical purposes only. These uses include the preparation of aggregated data in the form of statistical tables for publication, analysis, and interpretation to meet legislative mandates of P.L. 93-353, such as an annual report on health resources, including a description and analysis of the statistics included under Section 306(b)(1)(G). In addition, probability samples of individuals are selected by NCHS for statistical research purposes. Tables, magnetic tapes, and statistical samples of individuals are provided for statistical purposes only to the Bureau of Health Manpower for their use in determining health manpower scarcity areas, for loan forgiveness, and developing and evaluating educational and training programs for health manpower. Users consist of health manpower researchers, planners and statisticians.

Safeguards: All employees of NCHS, as a condition of employment, sign an affidavit binding them to nondisclosure of identifiable individuals information. Agreements are also obtained from the recipients of individual identifiable data described above which bind them to nondisclosure of information which permits the identification of individuals and limits the use of the data to statistical research and analysis Similarly, as a provision of the contract, a contractor acting as a data collection and processing agent of NCHS assures that the confidentiality of the records will be maintained.

Retention and disposal: The original records are retained in the offices of national professional associations and/or State boards of licensure, or the NCHS data processing facility until the process of conversion to magnetic tape and verification of information is completed and a subsequent inventory or survey is initiated. For these reasons the records may be retained for a period of up to five years before disposal.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: With respect to this system of records, exemption has been granted from the requirements contained in subsections 552a(c)(3), (d)(1) through (4), and (e)(4)(G) and (H) in accordance with the provision of subsection 552a(k)(4) of the Privacy Act of 1974. The reason that the system has been exempted is that this system contains only records required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records.

System name: Vital Statistics for Births, Deaths, Fetal Deaths, Marriages and Divorces Occurring in the United States during Each Year. HEW/OASH/NCHS

Security classification: None

System location:

Center Building
3700 East-West Highway
Hyattsville, Maryland 20782

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who are born and their parents; individuals who die; individuals who are married or divorced; and parents experiencing fetal deaths.

Categories of records in the system: The records include microfilm images of State records or machine-readable data prepared by the State from records collected under the laws of each State for births, deaths, fetal deaths, marriages and divorces. The records contain the demographic characteristics of individuals associated with each event. In addition, the birth records include information on the characteristics of each live birth, the health status of the infant, and socioeconomic characteristics of the parents. The death records contain medical information relating to cause of death and to socioeconomic characteristics of the deceased; the fetal death record contains medical information relating to cause of death and socioeconomic characteristics of the parents. Marriages and divorces include demographic and socioeconomic characteristics of both parties to the event and legal information regarding the event.

Periodically the National Center for Health Statistics conducts followback surveys; collecting information on random samples of births and deaths through mail questionnaires The followback surveys are designed primarily to expand the scope of data that can be collected from the national registration system, to make the registration system more responsive to changing needs for data, and to evaluate the quality of data collected on the birth and death records. The content of questionnaires for the followback surveys varies Past surveys have collected information on such topics as hospital utilization in the last year of life, smoking habits of the deceased, health status of infants, and pregnancy and employment histories of mothers.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act Section 306(h) (42 USC 242 k).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The processed data are disseminated for public use in forms that do not permit identification of individuals, such as published statistical tables, special unpublished tabulations, and public use computer tapes, which carry no individual identifiers. They are used by members of Congress and their staffs, other executive branch agencies, State and city governments, public and private research institutions, life insurance companies, faculty and students of universities, physicians, workers in health information, newspaper reporters and feature writers, etc The findings are used to make determinations on needs for legislation, appropriations, and programs in the health field; to pinpoint health problems, measure progress of national health programs, and make population estimates; for epidemiological studies, marketing research, sociological studies, and studies of the family; and for other research directed at understanding our society.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are transferred onto magnetic tapes without name and address information and are maintained on magnetic tapes for an indefinite period.

Retrievability: The State file number is assigned to each record on magnetic tape linking it to the original certificate on file in the State vital statistics office Data from the microfilm copies of certificates of births, deaths, fetal deaths, marriages and divorces submitted by some States are transferred to magnetic tape in coded form (without names or addresses) and are merged with the machine-readable data tapes furnished by States providing data through the Cooperative Health Statistics System. The tape is used for statistical purposes only. These uses include the preparation of aggregated data in the form of statistical tables for publication, analysis, and interpretation, to meet the legislative mandates of Public Law 93-353, i.e., to determine the extent and nature of illness and disability of the population of the U.S., including life expectancy and levels of infant and maternal mortality, environmental and other health hazards, trends in family formation, growth, and dissolution, and other related matters. Users consist of health planners, statisticians, epidemiologists, demographers, and others concerned with the problems of health, health care, and health hazards.

Safeguards: All employees of NCHS, as a condition of employment, sign an affidavit binding them to nondisclosure of identifiable individual information. Only employees of NCHS or employees of contractors who have signed similar affidavits are permitted access to the magnetic tapes containing the certificate numbers or to the files containing the microfilm copies of the certificates. The certificate numbers of the individual records and the geographic code identification of cities with less than 250,000 population are removed before the data tapes are released for public use. No identifying number appears on the public use tape that would link a record on that tape to any individual, to the NCHS master tape, to the microfilm file, or to the original certificate in the State vital statistics office.

Retention and disposal: The microfilm copies of the records are retained in office files of NCHS until the process of conversion to magnetic tape and verification of information is completed. The death records are sent to the Federal Records Center ten years after tabulation for deaths occurring during the three-year period surrounding census years and one year after tabulation for other years. They are held until disposed of, 15 years after tabulation for deaths of the censal years, and five years after tabulation for other years. Records of births, fetal deaths, marriages, and divorces are disposed of two years after tabulation. The questionnaires for the followback surveys are destroyed after conversion to magnetic tape, tabulation, and analyses have been completed.

Information in follow-back surveys is obtained from hospitals, physicians, or relatives of the infants or the deceased.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: With respect to this system of records, exemption has been granted from the requirements contained in subsections 552a(c)(3), (d)(1) through (4), and (e)(4)(G) and (H), in accordance with the provision of subsection 552a(k)(4) of the Privacy Act of 1974. The reason that the system has been exempted is that this system contains only records required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records.

System name: Health Resources Utilization Statistics. DHEW/OASH/NCHS.

Security classification: None.

System location:

Center Building
3700 East-West Highway
Hyattsville, Maryland 20782

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Recipients of medical care included in statistical surveys and reports of the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS), including: (1) staff and residents of nursing homes selected by random sampling techniques to be representative of nursing homes in the U.S.; (2) physicians providing office based medical care and patients visiting such physicians, (3) medical records from selected short-stay hospitals; and (4) persons visiting the family planning facilities participating in the National Reporting System for Family Planning Services.

Categories of records in the system: Statistical records containing information on: (1) the utilization of nursing home care through data on residents (demographic and social characteristics, health status, and charges paid for care) and the facility (general characteristics, certification, services offered, and expense); (2) the demographic characteristics, medical and other problems of persons visiting physicians' offices, and the physicians' diagnoses, treatment, and disposition decisions made during such visits as obtained from physicians during randomly assigned one-week survey periods; (3) the demographic characteristics, administrative information (admission and discharge dates, discharge status, and medical record number), and medical information (diagnoses and surgical procedures abstracted from the face sheet of short stay hospital medical records); and (4) family planning medical services provided by the clinics participating in a nationwide sample survey reporting system, the demographic and socioeconomic characteristics, including education and welfare status, of the recipients of these services, and the extent to which these services (excluding physicians' offices) are funded by Federal grants. In many cases, these records do not contain individual identifiers when they come under control of the National Center for Health Statistics; they carry only sequence numbers, which only the originating agency would be able to translate into a personal identifier--and even then, not in all cases. Names of residents and staff of nursing homes and patients of physicians are listed on separated forms for sampling purposes only and are not included in the final statistical records.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act, Section 306(b)(42 U.S.C. 242k).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The data are disseminated for: (1) purposes of statistical research and analysis, and in the case of family planning statistics, for executing national family planning programs; (2) outside of DHEW in forms which do not permit the identification of individuals, such as publications of statistical tables, specially requested tabulations, and public use computer tapes. These are communicated to interested persons outside DHEW, such as members of Congress and their staffs, other executive branch agencies, universities and medical schools, State and local health planning agencies, private foundations, etc. The findings are used by demographers, sociologists, health statisticians, epidemiologists, medical educators, health planners, other scholars, and concerned citizens, to evaluate health matters, make determinations on needs for legislation, appropriations, new service programs, and the like.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are transferred onto magnetic tapes without name and address information and are maintained on magnetic tapes for an indefinite period.

Retrievability: Data are retrieved by individual identifier only in the editing stage of data processing and only for the purpose of correcting errors in the recording of information. Original survey records are reviewed for accuracy and edited, then data (without personal identifiers such as name or social security number) are transferred to magnetic tape. The original records are stored at the Federal Records Center. The tape is used for statistical purposes only, as specified by statute, Section 308(d) of Public Law 93-353. These uses include the preparation of aggregated data in the form of statistical tables for publication, analysis and interpretation to meet the legislative mandates of Public Law 93-353, i.e., collection of statistics on the utilization of health services, including the utilization of: (1) nursing home facilities to determine levels of illness and disability, effects on the institutionalized population, and the costs of care; (2) ambulatory health services by specialties and types of practice of the health professionals providing such services; (3) short-stay hospitals to determine characteristics of patients, length of stay, diagnosis and surgical operations, and patterns of use of care in hospitals of different size and ownership; (4) family planning facilities to provide statistics on the size of and services dispensed by these facilities, the numbers and characteristics of family planning patients, the overall proportion of the target population' which is being reached by family planning programs on a national scale; and the like. The family planning data are distributed to the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Population Affairs, DHEW, the Bureau of Community Health Services, and others for the purpose of executing national family planning programs.

V 4 3 / 1 8 8 S E 2 7 7 8

Safeguards: All employees of the National Center for Health Statistics, as a condition of employment, sign an affidavit binding them to nondisclosure of identifiable individual information. Since the magnetic data tapes have no name and address information, users of the tape could only identify specific individuals by relating the identification number on the tape to the original record. Only employees of NCHS, NCHS contractors, the agency supplying the information in the first instance, or third parties with the written permission of the agency supplying the information are permitted access to the magnetic tapes with the identifying numbers described above or to the files containing the original reporting instruments. Magnetic tapes with identification numbers removed are made available to the public for statistical uses.

Retention and disposal: The original records are retained in office files of NCHS or NCHS contractors for two years. The procedure for family planning records differs in that the original documents are retained in office files for only two months. In all instances, the original records are then sent to the Federal Records Center where they are stored for five years.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act, Section 304(b) (42 U.S.C. 242b).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The following routine uses from Appendix B of the Department Regulations (45 CFR Part 5b) are applicable to this system of records:

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto (Item (1)).

Where federal agencies having the power to subpoena other federal agencies records, such as the Internal Revenue Service or the Civil Rights Commission, issue a subpoena to the Department for records in this system of records, the Department will make such records available (Item (6)).

The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records (Item (9)).

To the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual (Item (100)).

To individuals and organizations, deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out specific research solely for the purpose of carrying out such research (Item (101)).

To organizations deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out quality assessments, medical audits or utilization review (Item (102)).

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The information is contained on paper records although computer-readable tape may be employed in the future.

Retrievability: Information is retrieved by name, address, specialty, and by other characteristics. The data is used by staff of NCHS or its contractors for selecting consultants to assist in projects or conducted or sponsored by NCHS.

Safeguards: Records are kept in locked metal cabinets or in a locked room when not in use. Records will be used only by staff authorized to use them for the purpose for which they were obtained. For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g. security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained indefinitely. Records may be removed and destroyed upon the consultant's death, disability for consultant work, or request that his/her records be removed from the file.

Retrievability: Retrieved by case number and name. Used for clinical intervention by therapists and, with individual consent, for behavioral and basic research.

Safeguards: Only authorized research and service staff have access to records which will be kept in locked file drawers. Index records kept in separate locked cabinets. Contractors will comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act and with the Departmental Regulations.

Retention and disposal: Records may be retired to a Federal Records Center and subsequently disposed of in accordance with the ADAMHA Records Control Schedule. The disposal standard for these records may be obtained by writing the system manager at the address below.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Mental Health Study Center
2340 University Boulevard, East
Adelphi, Maryland 20783

Notification procedure: An individual may have access to his/her record upon written request, with notarized signature, addressed to the System Manager identified above. The request should include the name of the researcher, as well as the name of the study, if it is a named study. An individual who requests notification of or access to a medical/dental record shall, at the time the request is made, designate in writing a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. (These notification and access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.6) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.). A parent or guardian who requests notification of or access to a minor's record shall at the time the request is made designate a family physician or other health professional (other than a family member) to whom the record, if any, will be sent. The designate will receive the record in all cases and upon review will determine whether the record should be made available to the parent or guardian.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.5(a)(2)) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47410.).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.7) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.).

Record source categories: From the patients themselves with their approval, cooperation, and participation.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

Notification procedure: An individual may have access to his/her record upon written request, with notarized signature, addressed to the System Manager identified above. The request should include the patient's register number and the number of years of incarceration. An individual who requests notification of or access to a medical/dental record shall, at the time the request is made, designate in writing a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. (These notification and access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.6) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.). A parent or guardian who requests notification of or access to a minor's record shall at the time the request is made designate a family physician or other health professional (other than a family member) to whom the record, if any, will be sent. The designate will receive the record in all cases and upon review will determine whether the record should be made available to the parent or guardian.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.5(a)(2)) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47410.).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.7) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.).

Record source categories: Patients; drug treatment programs; Bureau of Prisons; case workers; psychiatrists; research laboratories; and pharmacies and hospitals. Many of these records are confidential and privileged communications as guaranteed under Section 344(d) of the PHS Act.

System name: Saint Elizabeths Hospital General Medical/Clinical Records System and Related Indexes--HEW/ADAMHA/NIMH.

Security classification: None.

System location: This is a widely decentralized system of records. The medical/clinical records of active patients on the rolls of the Hospital, which were written after July 1, 1973, are located in the specific division where an individual patient is residing or, in the case of outpatients, at the location of the specific outpatient clinic where they receive treatment. The medical/clinicalrecords of active patients who were admitted to Saint Elizabeths Hospital prior to July 1, 1973, and which were written prior to that date, are located in A Building, Room 121 and in the basement of that building, with duplicate copies of those records located in the clinical division where the patient resided or was served as an outpatient. The medical/clinical records of discharged or deceased patients are located in A Building, Room 121 and the basement of that building, and inactive records older than four years are stored in the Federal Records Center in Suitland, Maryland. In addition to the medical/clinical records themselves, SEH maintains numerous card files which contain limited information relating to identification of past and present patients taken from the medical/clinical record and used for management and monitoring purposes. These card files are located throughout the Hospital. Records are located at Saint Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, D.C. 20032, and Federal Records Center, Suitland, Maryland.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All past and present patients of Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

Categories of records in the system: Inpatient and outpatient psychiatric medical/clinical records. The medical/clinical record contains identifying data (name, date and place of birth, age, sex, race, marital status, legal category, social security number, leave and residential status, admission and discharge dates, identification of relatives and Hospital identification number) and medical/clinical information (physician's admission note, results of physical examinations, descriptions of patient's present and past physical and mental health, diagnosis, prognosis, consultant's opinions, social history, treatment plan, results of diagnostic tests and procedures, notes of patient's response to treatment, progress notes, nurses notes, incident reports, and reports or notes of others who contributed to a patient's treatment and/or social work efforts, and correspondence with Saint Elizabeths Hospital concerning such a patient.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 24 USC 161, et seq.; 21 DC Code 562.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

V 43/188 SE 27 78

1. At Division level (Active Patients) - File folders with general medical record and correspondence file are kept in metal file cabinets. Index cards, monitoring cards, kardex and addressograph plates are kept in their appropriate containers.

2. At Administration level (Discharged and Deceased Patients) - Clinical and correspondence records are filed in separate coded folders with unit numbering system. Patients index - 3x5 card file of all patients hospitalized or treated at SEH in a Kardveyer; Diagnostic Indexes - a 5x7 separate index card file stored in a Visu-Triver.

Retrievability:
Data to be retrieved by patient's name and hospital number.

Purposes of the system are:

1. To document a patient's illness, chief complaint, history, physical examination, diagnostic test and procedure reports, to plan treatment either as an inpatient or an outpatient.

2. To promote continuity of care for follow-up of treatment; for reference upon future treatment and care.

3. To provide basis for reports mandatory under Federal and local laws.

4. In some instances, to provide as a basis for action in the course of employee discipline or competence determination proceedings.

5. To transact hospital business in filing insurance claims, verification of patient's competency, disability, or retirement benefits, verification of leave status and residence.

6. To serve as a basis for hospital administrative planning and evaluation of its programs.

7. To serve as impersonal documents for the hospital staff continuing education and studies.

8. To be used by hospital staff for assessment of the quality of treatment, for medical audit and utilization review.

9. To be used for the legal defense of the hospital and its staff in cases where a claim is based on patient's mental or physical conditions and arising from the patient's treatment at Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

10. To be used for statistical reports, monthly analysis of clinical division services, monthly, quarterly, annual reports.

11. To serve as a basis for reports to accrediting agencies, Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, American Hospital Association, American Psychiatric Association, Medicare Licensure, etc.

12. Indexes based on the medical/clinical record are routinely used for: (a) speedy identification and location of specific patients; (b) monitoring the completeness of patient records, particularly those discharged or deceased; (c) to monitor the changing status of patients either in terms of transfers within the Hospital or outside the Hospital; (d) easy identification of basic demographic data used for statistical and/or research purposes; and, (e) quick review of current treatment regimen in some cases.

Safeguards:
1. Available only to properly trained and screened personnel.

2. Access limited to authorized individuals only. Enforced by Security personnel. Room are locked when unoccupied.

System location: Records included in this system are located in hospitals, universities, research centers, research foundations, and coordinating centers under contract with the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, and in NHLBI facilities in Bethesda, Maryland.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Participants in these studies include 1) individuals who have been or who are presently being treated by the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, for diseases or conditions of the heart, lung, blood vessels and blood; 2) individuals whose physical, genetic, social, economic, enviornmental, behavioral or nutritional conditions or habits are being studied in relation to the incidence of heart, lung, blood vessel and blood diseases among human beings; and 3) normal volunteers who have agreed to provide control data germane to these studies.

Categories of records in the system: This system consists of a variety of clinical, medical, and statistical information resulting from or contained in research findings, medical histories, vital statistics, personal interviews, questionnaires, or direct observation. The system also includes records of current addresses of study participants, photographs, fingerprints, and correspondence from or about participants in these studies.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sec. 412, 413 Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 287a, 287b)

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

1 Research data are made available to authorized, collaborating researchers, which includes DHEW contractors and grantees.

2. See Appendix B Departmental Regulations (45 CFR Part 5b), Items: 2,3,8,9,100,101, and 102.

(2)Referrals may be made of assignments of research investigators and project monitors to specific research projects to the Smithsonian Institution to contribute to the Smithsonian Science Information Exchange, Inc.

(3)In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosures may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice.

(8)Where the appropriate official of the Department, pursuant to the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation determines that it is in the public interest to disclose a record which is otherwise exempt from mandatory disclosure, disclosure may be made from this system of records.

(9)The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

(100)Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual.

(101)Disclosure may be made to individuals and organizations, deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out specific research solely for the purpose of carrying out such research.

(102)Disclosure may be made to organizations deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out quality assessments, medical audits or utilization review.

System name: Clinical Research: Clinical Research Studies dealing with Hearing, Speech and Language Disorders. HEW/NIH/NINCDS.

Security classification: None.

System location:

Federal Building, NIH
7550 Wisconsin Avenue
Bethesda, MD 20014
And at hospitals, medical centers, universities and educational settings under contract. A list of locations is available upon request from the System Manager.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Patients and normal volunteers participating in clinical research studies dealing with hearing, speech and language disorders.

Categories of records in the system: Medical findings, clinical research data, medical and educational histories and research data on the hearing, speech, language and cognition of subjects being tested.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 42 U.S.C. 241, 289a, 289c.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

1. Records are made available to approved or collaborating researchers, including DHEW contractors and grantees.

2. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

3. Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activity of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual (Appendix B Departmental Regulations (45 CFR Part 5b) Item 100.)

4. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: They are stored in file folders.

Retrievability: Name or identifier code. HEW uses: Data analysis; program management; HEW user (Communicative Disorders Program, National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke), will receive data extracted by principal investigators from patient and normal volunteer records on the effects of various factors on hearing, speech, language, and cognition.

Safeguards: The records are maintained in cabinets in offices where access is limited to authorized personnel (principal investigator and staff assigned to the project, project officer, contracting officer).

Retention and disposal: Years at NIH: one year to indefinitely, depending on the requirements of the specific study. Following completion of a specific study all individual identification will be removed, or the records destroyed.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File folders, microfilm, charts, graphs, computer tapes disks and punch cards.

Retrievability: By name and/or code number HEW uses: to determine (1) factors or substances in the environment which cause cancer; (2) ways in which these factors or substances may cause cancer; and (3) characteristics of persons who may be particularly susceptible to the environmental factor(s) or substance(s) and/or to cancer.

Safeguards: DHEW contractors and collaborating researchers will comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act and with Department Regulations. Subjects participating in a clinical study will be advised that their identity will only be known to those who are involved in conducting the study and that any published findings will be in a format which precludes individual identification. Data will be kept in secured areas with access limited to authorized personnel (system manager, project officer, contracting officer, collaborating researchers, staff, and DHEW contractors). Data transmitted to the NCI will be in a non-personally identifiable form. For computerized records the contractor will comply, where appropriate, with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards Guidelines. For example, access is controlled by the use of security codes known only to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: One year to indefinitely depending on the project. Hard copy burned; computer tapes and disks erased.

Security classification: None.

System location: Records included in this system are located in hospitals, research foundations, and universities under contract, in the Naval Medical Research Institute, and in the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases facilities in Bethesda, Md. (See Appendix I).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Patients who have received kidney transplants and donors of kidneys transplanted at participating institutions (See Appendix I) during the period January 1, 1974, through December 31, 1976.

Categories of records in the system: Clinical and medical records containing information on clinical examinations, laboratory findings, and related research records. For kidney recipients, a demographic profile is also included.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 42 U.S.C. 241(g) and 289c.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

1. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual.

2. Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual. (Appendix Bt Departmental Regulations (45 CFR Part 5b), Item 100).

3. Clinical research data are made available to authorized individuals and organizations deemed qualified to carry out specific research solely for the purpose of carrying out such research. (Appendix B, Departmental Regulations (45 CFR Part 5b) Item 101).

4. Research data may be made available to organizations deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out quality assessment, medical audits, or utilization review. (Appendix B, Departmental Regulations (45 CFR Part 5b) Item 102).

5. Certain infectious diseases are reported to state governments as required by law.

6. Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File folders, punched cards, and magnetic tapes or discs.

Retrievability: Information is retrieved by name and location of study and by transplant number. HEW Uses: Summaries of the data developed in this study will be used to study the relevance of tissue typing to the outcome of kidney transplants. The influence or organ preservation techniques and various surgical and medical therapies will be similarly studied. As a regular part of these studies, clinical research data are made available to collaborating researchers who are part of the program. These are HEW employees and/or researchers employed by the contractors.

Safeguards: The records are maintained in file cabinets in offices which are locked when not attended, with access limited to authorized personnel (system manager, principal investigator and his staff assigned to the project, project officer, contracting officer). For computerized records, safeguards are established in accordance with Departmental standards and National Bureau of Standards' guidelines, e.g., security codes will be used limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained for five years to indefinitely, depending on the requirements of the study. Records are burned or erased.

Security classification: None.

System location:

National Institute of Environmental Health Services
Environmental Biometry Branch
P. O. Box 12233
North Carolina 27709

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals and minors, both male and female, with known or suspected diseases, maladies, chemical or biological contaminations, as well as normal or non-suspect individuals and minors in control or study groups for the purposes of comparison. Individuals included in this system of records will normally have volunteered to participate in the study and voluntarily provided information for inclusion in the system. The participants may be, but are not limited to, patients; workers subject to specific environments; individuals selected because of social, nutritional, physical, genetic and economic conditions and behavioral characteristics; and members of the general population subject to the variety of contaminants present in the environment.

Categories of records in the system: This system consists of a variety of records pertinent to an individuals' current health status; medical history; occupational history and work environments; and selected items of personal data such as smoking habits, family size, family medical history and domiciles. Examples of information which may be included in this system, are the individual or minor's name, SSAN, date of birth, weight, height, sex, race, medical history, blood type, laboratory results, examination findings, current and previous medications received, list of employers, descriptions of the work environment, substances or compoundsroutinely handled or exposed to, and a history of current and previous residences.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 42U.S.C. 241.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

1. Disclosure may be made to HEW contractors and collaborating researchers and their staff for the purposes of analyzing data and preparing scientific reports and articles.

2. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of the individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office, made at the request of the individual, and in the case of a minor, the minor's parent or legal guardian.

3. Other HEW routine uses as published in the Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47415, Appendix B and (45 CFR Part 5B) are listed below:

(2) Referrals may be made of assignments of research investigators and project monitors to specific research projects to the Smithsonian Institution to contribute to the Smithsonian Science Information Exchange, Inc.

(3) In the event the Department deems if desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice.

(8) Where the appropriate official of the Department, pursuant to the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation determines that it is in the public interest to disclose a record which is otherwise exempt from a mandatory disclosure, disclosure may be made from this system of records.

(9) The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

(100) Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defining claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual.

4. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Information will be stored in one of a combination of the following mediums: file folders, data forms, punch card, magnetic tape discs.

Retrievability: Information will be retrieved by personal identifier such as name or code number. Social security numbers which are supplied on a voluntary basis also are used for retrieval. HEW USES: National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences will use the data collected to determine: factors and substances in the environment which have adverse effects on the health and well being of individuals or groups of individuals; the mechanisms by which these factors and/or substances, by themselves or in combination, produce adverse health effects; individual or group characteristics that render persons susceptible to chemical contamination, disease, or other adverse health effects from agents in the environment; general levels of environmental contamination and body burden on a national, regional, or local basis as well as within general or specific work environments; and the scientific basis for advising regulatory agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency, the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health and the Department of Labor on adverse health effects of substances and conditions found in the environment.

Safeguards: Access to the information will be controlled by the Project Officer or his representative at remote locations. Contractors or collaborating researchers will, by formal agreement, comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act and Department regulations. Hard copy data will be maintained in locked file cabinets at the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences or other remote study locations. Information stored in computer systems will be accessible only through proper sequencing of signal commands and access codes specifically assigned to the Project Officer or contractor in accordance with Departmental standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines. Subjects directly participating in studies will be advised that their identity will be known only to those persons involved in conducting the study and that any published findings will be in a format which precludes individual identification.

Retention and disposal: The records will be maintained until they are no longer required for the research purpose(s) for which the record was established. The records will be destroyed by shredding, burning, or other appropriate means so as to render them illegible. Computer tapes and discs will be erased.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Environmental Biometry Branch
National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences
P. O. Box 12233
North Carolina 27709

Notification procedure: Normally, individuals would know whether a file existed on the basis of their voluntary participation and provision of data. However, individuals may write to the systems manager to determine if a file exists. In writing, they should provide the following data:

a. Complete name at the time of the study.
b. Birthdate.
c. Home address at the time of the study.
d. The facility where the examination was given or information otherwise collected.
e. Date, or approximate dates when information was collected or an examination conducted.
f. Name of study if known.
g. A current name, address and telephone number where they can be reached.
h. The name, address and telephone number of a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the requester of its contents at his/her discretion, in the event the file contains medical or medically related information. The representative may be a physician, other health professional, or any other responsible individual of the person's choice. These provisions for notification regarding medical records are in accordance with Department Regulation (45 CFR Part 5b.6) published in the Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.

Record access procedures: The same information as outlined under notification procedures is needed for access to records except as noted under the provisions for access to medical records. For non-medical records, the request should be addressed to the Systems Manager and accompanied by either a notarized statement that the person is who he/she claims to be or a certification that the individual is who he/she claims to be, and understands that the knowing and willful request for acquisition of a record pertaining to an individual under false pretenses is a criminal offense subject to a 5,000 fine. In addition, for access to medical records, as with notification, the requester must provide the name, address, and telephone number of a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the requester of its contents at his/her discretion. The representative may be a physician, other health professional, or any other responsible individual of the person's choice. These provisions for access to medical records are in accordance with Department Regulation (45 CFR, Part 5b.6) published in the Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.

Contesting record procedures: Write to the Systems Manager and specify the record and the information to be contested.

Record source categories: HEW agencies, institutions under contract to the U.S. Government, universities, medical schools, hospitals, commercial, institutions, labor and trade organizations, State agencies, international agencies, foreign governments, other U.S. Government agencies, patients and normal volunteers, physicians, researchers and other collaborating personnel.

Bethesda, MD 20014

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Applicants for access to the facilities and services of the PROPHET System, a unique national computer resource for the study of chemical/biological interrelationships.

Categories of records in the system:

(a) descriptions of the research objectives of the applicant individuals or groups and their plans for use of the PROPHET system in support of their research
(b) biographical sketches of all key individuals associated with the prospectuses
(c) evaluation documents
(d) related correspondence

Authority for maintenance of the system: 42 U.S.C. 241(a)

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Disclosure may be made:

1. To the Smithsonian Science Information Exchange for dissemination of science information (abstracts of research grants only).

2. To the Cognizant Audit Agency for auditing.

3. To the Department of Justice as required for litigation.

4. To a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

5. To qualified experts not within the definition of Department employees as prescribed in Department Regulations (45 CFR, Part 5b.2) for opinions as a part of the application review process.

6. To a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the record is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

7. To individuals and organizations deemed qualified by the PHS to carry out specific research related to the review and award processes of the PHS.

8. To organizations in the private sector with whom PHS has contracted for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in a system. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

9. To the grantee institution in connection with performance or administration under the terms and conditions of the award.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File folders.

Retrievability: System is indexed by name of principal individual associated with the prospectus and by program identification number. HEW use: system is used exclusively in support of the Chemical/Biological Information-Handling (CBIH) Program management--i.e., technical merit review of prospectuses, allocation of PROPHET services, analysis and evaluation of ongoing activities, and program planning.

Safeguards: The records are maintained in cabinets in the office of the Program Director, CBIH. Access is limited to authorized personnel, i.e., system manager and members of his staff, review committee members.

Retention and disposal: Number of years held at NIH: 2 Disposal methods include burning or shredding paper materials.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Test results will be returned to the collaborating physician or responsible hospital official.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual.

Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual. (Departmental Regulations (45 CFR, part 5b) Appendix B, Item 100.)

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Cards, file folders, and magnetic tape.

Retrievability: Statistical aggregate use. To determine the appropriate concentrations and usefulness of substances to be used in skin testing, and to collect epidemiologic data regarding myobacteria. To study the effects of the first skin test on subsequent tests. Records retrievable by name and I.D. number.

Safeguards: Source documents and tapes of current projects are kept in locked building with security guards during non-business hours. For computerized records, safeguards, established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g., security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Transfer to Federal Records Center when no longer needed for evaluation and analysis. Destroy when 20 years old unless needed for further study. How destroyed: Paper shredded or burned. Tape scratched.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Patients with disease, their contacts, others with possible exposure and appropriate controls.

Categories of records in the system: Medical histories, case reports, line listings, hand sort cards.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 361(42 U.S.C. 241, 264)

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records are considered to be the records of State and/or local health departments and are left with them at the end of the investigations. These health departments may then identify persons with disease and/or others contacted during the investigations to control, prevent, or treat disease, or for follow up evaluation including collection of appropriate bodily specimens. CDC may or may not request duplicate copies of these records for further analysis following completion of the field investigation. Private physicians may also be supplied pertinent medical information from these records.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual.

Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual. (Departmental Regulations (45 CFR, part 5b) Appendix B, Item 100.)

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity, (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File folders.

Retrievability: Collection of individual case histories, including epidemiological, medical and laboratory information is essential in virtually all epidemic field investigations. These data serve as the basis for all analyses that lead to understanding the etiology of disease occurrence and subsequent prevention and control. Retrievable alphabetically by name Safeguards: Information is in files available only to medical epidemiologists, their clerical help, or their specifically designated paramedical personnel and only for duration of the investigation.

Retention and disposal: No. years held at CDC - 2 No. years held at FRC - 5. How destroyed - Burned.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Portions of records (name, social security number if known, date of birth, and last known address) may be disclosed to one or more other sources selected from those listed in Appendix I, as applicable This may be done solely for obtaining a determination as to whether or not an individual has died The purpose of determining death is so that NIOSH may obtain death certificates, which state the cause of death, from the appropriate Federal, state, or local agency Cause of death will enable NIOSH to evaluate whether excess occupationally related mortality is occurring.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity, (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components, or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Computer tapes, computer cards, manual files

Retrievability: The main purpose is to conduct a mortality study on Pennsylvania coal miners Survey number is the index used to retrieve records from this system

Safeguards:

Guard service in building
Locked building, locked rooms
Personnel screening
Locked computer room and computer tape vaults
Locked file cabinets
Computer tapes are password protected

For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Record copy maintained from three to ten years in accordance with retention schedules Source documents for computer disposed of when no longer needed in the study, as determined by the system manager, and as provided in the signed consent form, as appropriate Disposal methods include erasing computer tapes and burning or shredding printouts

S. when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual. (Appendix B, Department Regulations, (45 CFR Part 5b), item 100).

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Manual files, computer cards, computer tapes, computer listings, microfilm.

Retrievability: The purpose of this system is to determine the relationship between worker exposure to hazardous agents or stressors, and occupational disease. This information will be used to recommend procedures to reduce the incidence of occupational disease. Name and case number are the indexes used to retrieve records from this system.

Safeguards:

Evening guard service in building
Locked building; locked rooms
Personnel screening
Locked computer room and computer tape vaults
Locked file cabinets

For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Personal identifiers are destroyed as soon as the system has stabilized, and statistical summaries can be run. Computer tapes are erased; paper records are shredded or burned.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Volunteer subjects.

Categories of records in the system: Medical history, results of medical tests, demographic data, individual's description of his experience with the equipment.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Occupational Safety and Health Act Section 20 (29 U.S.C. 669).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Records may be released to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal Agencies in defending claims against the U. S. when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual. (Appendix B, Department Regulations, (45 CFR Part 5b), item 100).

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Manual files.

Retrievability: The purpose of this study is to determine the suitability of particular pieces of personal protective equipment in the hazards of the workplace. Name and case number are the indexes used to retrieve records from this system.

Safeguards:

Evening guard service in building
Locked building; locked rooms
Personnel screening
Locked file cabinets

For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: All personal identifiers are destroyed at the end of the study (which takes approximately one year). Paper records are shredded or burned.

Portions of records (name, social security number if known, date of birth, and last known address) may be disclosed to one or more other sources selected from those listed in Appendix I, as applicable. This may be done solely for obtaining a determination as to whether or not an individual has died. The purpose of determining death is so that NIOSH may obtain death certificates, which state the cause of death, from the appropriate Federal, state, or local agency. Cause of death will enable NIOSH to evaluate whether excess occupationally related mortality is occurring.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Miners, nonminers, wives of miners, and wives of non-miners living in Richwood, Mullens, and Marion Counties, West Virginia.

Categories of records in the system: Medical, occupational, and smoking histories; results of medical tests; demographic data.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, Section 501 (30 U.S.C. 951).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual (Appendix B of HEW Regulation, 45 C.F.R., part 5b, item 100).

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File folders, computer tape, computer discs, computer cards, computer printouts.

Retrievability: The purpose of this system is to perform medical and epidemiological research and statistical analysis on the respiratory disease of coal miners and other workers in coal mining communities in West Virginia. The data is retrieved by name or case number.

Safeguards: For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g. security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

24-hour guard service in building
Locked building; locked rooms
Personnel screening
Locked computer room and computer tape vaults
Locked file cabinets
Computer tapes are password protected.

Retention and disposal: Record copy maintained from three to ten years in accordance with retention schedules. Source documents for computer disposed of when no longer needed in the study, as determined by the system manager, and as provided in the signed consent form, as appropriate. Disposal methods include erasing computer tapes and burning or shredding printouts or paper forms.

In addition, data is occasionally at field work sites and contractor sites as studies are developed, data collected and reports written. A list of field and contractor sites where individually identifiable data is currently located is available upon request to the System Manager.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Industrial workers exposed to physical and/or chemical agents that may damage the human body in any way. Some examples are: 1) organic carcinogens, 2) inorganic carcinogens, 3) mucosal or dermal irritants, 4) fibrogenic materials, 5) acute toxic agents including sensitizing agents, 6) neurotoxic agents, 7) mutogenic (male and female) and teratogenic agents, 8) bio-accumulating noncarcinogen agents, and 9) chronic vascular disease causing agents.

Categories of records in the system: Physical exams, sputum cytology results, questionnaires, demographic information, smoking history, occupational histories, previous and current employment records, urine test records, X-rays, medical history, pulmonary function test records, medical disability forms, blood test records, drivers license data, hearing test results, spirometry results. The specific types of records to be collected and maintained are determined by the needs of the individual study.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act, Section 301 (42 U.S.C. 241); Occupational Safety and Health Act Section 20 (29 U.S.C. 669); Coal Mine Health and Safety Act Section 501 (30 U.S.C. 951).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Records may be released to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal Agencies in defending claims against the U.S. when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual. (Appendix B, Department Regulations, (45 CFR Part 5b), item 100).

Portions of records (name, social security number if known, date of birth, and last known address) may be disclosed to one or more other sources selected from those listed in Appendix I, as applicable. This may be done solely for obtaining a determination as to whether or not an individual has died. The purpose of determining death is so that NIOSH may obtain death certificates, which state the cause of death, from the appropriate Federal, State or local agency. Cause of death will enable NIOSH to evaluate whether excess occupationally related mortality is occurring.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Manual files, computer files, card files, microfilm, microfiche, and other files as appropriate.

Retrievability: The purpose of these studies is to evaluate mortality and morbidity of occupationally-related diseases; to determine the cause and prevention of diseases of industrial origin, and lead toward future prevention of occupationally-related diseases. Name, assigned number, plant name, year tested are some of the indices used to retrieve records from these systems. Other retrieval methods are utilized as individual research dictates.

Safeguards: Locked buildings, locked rooms, locked file cabinets, personnel screening, locked computer room and computer tape vaults, 24 hour guard service, password protection of computerized records, limited access to only authorized personnel. The guidelines contained in FIPS Publications 31 and 41 are followed when data subject to the Privacy Act is maintained on a computer. Two or more of the safeguards are used for all records covered by this system notice. The particular safeguards used are selected as appropriate for the type of records covered by an individual study. Departmental security guidelines will be followed.

Retention and disposal: Records will be maintained from three to twenty years in accordance with retention schedules. Every attempt will be made to strip personal identifiers from records and destroy the records when they are no longer needed. Any paper records which are disposed of will be shredded or burned and computer tapes will be erased.

Data is also occasionally located at field collection sites and contractor sites, as studies are developed, data collected, and reports written. A list of field and contractor sites where individually identifiable data is currently located is available upon request to the System Manager.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons working or having worked at coal mining operations and exposed or potentially exposed to substances which are known or suspected respiratory irritants or carcinogens. Also included are those individuals in the general population which have been selected as a control group.

Categories of records in the system: Previous and current employment records, medical and occupational histories, demographic data, X-rays, smoking histories, results of medical tests such as pulmonary function data, spirometry test results, permission forms, industrial environmental data, and questionnaires. The specific types of records to be collected and maintained are determined by the research needs of the specific study.

Coal Mine HeSafety Act Section 501 (30 U.S.C. 9511); Section 203 (30 U.S.C. 843); Occupational Safety and Health Act Section 20 (29 U.S.C. 669).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Records may be released to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal Agencies in defending claims against the U.S. when the claim is based upon an individuals mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual. (Appendix B, Department Regulations, (45 CFR Part 5b, item 100).

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity: (b) The United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. Some data is sent to the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration, Department of the Interior to report incidence of pneumoconiosis.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Computer tape, cards, and printouts; microfiche; X-rays, and manual files.

Retrievability: The purpose of this system is to investigage occupationally-related diseases and to determine the cause and prevention of such diseases. Plant name, study, name, and/or assigned numerical identifiers are some of the indices used to retrieve records from this system. Social security numbers, supplied on a voluntary basis, may occasionally be used for data retrieval.

Safeguards: 24 hour guard service in buildings, locked buildings, locked rooms, personnel screening, locked computer room and tape vaults, password protection of computerized records, limited access to only authorized personnel. Two or more of these safeguards are Plant name, study, name, and/or assigned numerical identifiers are some of the indicies used to retrieve records from this system. Social security numbers, supplied on a voluntary basis, may occasionally be used for data retrieval.

Safeguards: 24 hour guard service in buildings, locked buildings, locked rooms, personnel screening, locked computer room and tape vaults, password protection of computerized records, limited access to only authorized personnel. Two or more of these safeguards are used for all records covered by this system notice. The particular safeguards used are selected as appropriate for the type of records covered by such individual study. Departmental security guidelines will be followed.

Retention and disposal: Record copy maintained in accordance with retention schedules. Source documents for computer disposed of when no longer needed in the study, and as determined by the system manager, as provided in the signed consent form as appropriate. Disposal methods include erasing computer tapes and burning or shredding paper material.

SEP 27 1978 UM

V 43 / 188 SE 27 78

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the unofficial birth record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual. Such disclosure will be made in conjunction with notification that the birth record is an unofficial copy of the State Record, thus it must be verified by the State Health Department from which the record came.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: File folders in file cases; microfilm reels, computer cards and tapes.

Retrievability: Purpose: Used in health care program development, analysis, and evaluation. Birth record is an unofficial copy of the State record which is used internally for aggregate statistical and planning purposes. Users: Authorized agency personnel including maternal and child health personnel, health planners, statisticians, epidemiologists, demographers, and others concerned with problems of health, health care, and health hazards. Retrievability: Indexed by calendar year of event.

Safeguards: Locked areas.

Retention and disposal: Number of years held at IHS: Varies by IHS area from 1 year to indefinite. How destroyed: Burned or shredded.

System manager(s) and address: See Appendix.

Notification procedure: An individual or his designee who requests notification of or access to subject record is referred to State or other jurisdiction from which the record originated. Official certification of the document and contents can only be made by the State or other jurisdiction. These notification and access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations. (45 CFR, Section 5b.5 and 5b.6, Federal Register October 8, 1975, pages 47410 and 47411).

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Subject individual and/or his designee will have access to own record by supplying date of birth, father's name, mother's maiden name, and place of birth. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.5 (a) (2) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47410.

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. The information contested may only be changed in the unofficial vital records system and the State must be notified separately to change the official documents.

Record source categories: Records are obtained from State vital statistics offices and other jurisdictions.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Employees of enterprises regulated by FDA and other individuals subject to FDA enforcement actions.

Categories of records in the system: Includes correspondence, memoranda, inspection reports, and other documents that are investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, including criminal law enforcement purposes.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321 et seq.), the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 201 et seq.), and authority delegated to the Commissioner, 21 CFR Part 5.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Records that indicate violation or potential violation of law may be (1) referred for investigation and possible enforcement action under the Federal, State, or foreign laws to the Department of Justice, an appropriate State food and drug enforcement health agency or licensing authority, or the government of a foreign country or (2) disclosed in administrative or court proceedings.

Records in the system may be the subject of discretionary disclosures under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552).

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Manual files are maintained in letter-size folders. Part of FDA's general records on regulated establishments.

Retrievability: Indexed by company or subject, sometimes with individual name in card cross-index. There is also an automated index to this system. Records are used by FDA employees in investigations of possible violations of the law. FDA regulatory records lacking individual name indexes, such as its case file, and administrative files (AF), are not part of this system.

Safeguards: All files are stored in locked cabinets in a secured area. For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g. security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Administrative Services Branch, Associate Commissioner for Administration, Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure (some material is exempt from access and contest). Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register March 22, 1977, page 15629).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.50) published in the Federal Register of March 22, 1977, Page 15631.).

Record source categories: Individual on whom the record is maintained, from third parties such as consumers, scientists, representatives of other companies, State agencies, or developed by FDA during investigations for law enforcement purposes.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system is exempt from access and contest and certain other provisions of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d)(1) to (4), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G) to (H) and (f) to the extent that it includes investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, including criminal law enforcement purposes.

State Employees: Division of Federal-State Relations (HFO-300), Rm. 12-57, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857 and Administrative Branches at Field/District Offices (see Appendix A on Quality Assurance Program-FDA 09-10-0001 system).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: FDA employees and State and local government employees who have been issued FDA credentials for enforcement activities.

Categories of records in the system: Contains name, job title, social security number, sex, height, weight, date of birth, color of eyes and hair, duty status, and for State and local government employees, professional qualifications.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sections 702 to 704, the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 372 to 374).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Providing assurance to regulated enterprises that an individual is a duly designated enforcement officer and, in the case of State employees, an officer commissioned as an officer of the Department.

Used to gain entry to regulated establishments.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Maintained in letter-size manila folders or card files.

Retrievability: Indexed by name, used to issue or reissue credentials.

Safeguards: Masterfile is in locked containers in secured area.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained as long as individual is a duly designated or commissioned official; inactive files destroyed after 6 months.

System manager(s) and address: FDA Employees: Chief, Services Management Section, Associate Commissioner for Administration, Rm. 4C-03, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857; Chief, Office Services Section, Associate Commissioner for Administration, Rm. B-002, FB-8, 200 C St., SW., Washington, DC 20204; and Appendix A on Quality Assurance Program-FDA 09-10-0001 System). State Officers of Field/District Offices (see Appendix A on Quality Assurance Program FDA 09-10-0001 System. State Employees: Director, Division of Federal-State Relations (HFO-300), Rm. 12-57, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857 and Administrative Officers at Field/District Offices (see Appendix A on Quality Assurance System. FDA 09-10-0001).

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857. State officials should provide State of employment.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register March 22, 1977, Page 15629.).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.50) published in the Federal Register of March 22, 1977, Page 15631.).

Record source categories: Individual on whom the record is maintained.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

System name: Communications (Oral and Written) With the Public. HEW/FDA/HFA

Security classification: None.

System location: Administrative Services Branch, Associate Commissioner for Administration; Office of Legislative Services; 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857; FDA Field/District Offices (see Appendix A on Quality Assurance Program-FDA 09-10-0001 system).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals, other than employees of enterprises regulated by FDA, who communicate with FDA or, in some cases, are the subject of communications by others with FDA; for example, correspondence by members of Congress writing to FDA on their behalf.

Categories of records in the system: Generally initiated by individuals outside the agency. Includes correspondence from and to individuals, summaries of conversations prepared by FDA employees, and records prepared by FDA as a follow-up to consumer complaints, oral and written.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321 et seq.); the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 201 et seq.), and authority delegated to the Commissioner (21 CFR 5.1).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: All correspondence to and from members of the public, members of Congress, organization or company officials, or other persons except members of the Executive Branch and special government employees is available for public disclosure except to the extent that the correspondence concerns confidential information (21 CFR 20.102); individual names are generally deleted prior to disclosure.

Records that indicate violation or potential violation of law may be disclosed in administrative or court proceedings.

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. (45 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B(1));

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether state or local charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. (45 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B(5)).

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Manual files are maintained in letter-size folders.

Retrievability: Used by FDA employees in carrying out their responsibilities, e.g., responding to follow-up correspondence on complaints, requests for information, etc. Administrative Services Branch files include copies of correspondence received from public and FDA reply. Records are arranged by company or by subject. A card index gives correspondent's name, date of letter, subject and location. An automated index is being implemented. The Office of Legislative Services maintains duplicates of letters FDA sends to members of Congress and summaries of oral inquiries in files organized by members' names. The Office of Legislative Services maintains a manual control system and the Executive Secretariat, Office of the Commissioner, maintains an automated control system of pending correspondence needing reply. Field offices file consumer complaints by complainants' names. Other FDA units have correspondence files but these are not retrieved by individual name or personal identifiers.

Safeguards: All files are stored in locked cabinets in secured areas.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Administrative Services Branch, Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857; Director, Office of Legislative Services, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857; Regional or Deputy Regional Food and Drug Directors in FDA Field/District Offices (see Appendix A on Quality Assurance Program-FDA 0001.00 system).

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register March 22, 1977, Page 15629.).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.50) published in the Federal Register of March 22, 1977, Page 15631.).

Record source categories: Individual on whom the record is maintained or others (generally members of Congress) who write to FDA about them.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

System name: State Food and Drug Official File--HEW/FDA/HFO.

Security classification: None.

System location: Division of Federal-State Relations, Rm. 15 A 07, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Categories of individuals covered by the system: State Officials who have responsibilities related to those of the Food and Drug Administration.

Categories of records in the system: Contains name, date of birth, education and professional experience.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 702(a) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 372(a)).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Maintained in letter-size manila folders.

Retrievability: Indexed by name and State.

Safeguards: Maintained in locked files with correspondence by States.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained as long as individual is a State employee or until updated by the individual.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Division of Federal-State Relations, Rm. 15 A 07, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857.

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857. Provide name and State of employment.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, page 15629.).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.50), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, Page 15631.).

Record source categories: Individual on whom the record is maintained.

System name: Radiation Registry of Physicians--HEW/FDA/HFX.

Security classification: None.

System location: Division of Biological Effects, Bureau of Radiological Health, Rm. 38, Twinbrook Research Laboratory, 12709 Twinbrook Pkwy., Rockville, MD 20852.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Radiologists and Pathologists who were members of American College of Radiology or College of American Pathologists between 1961 and 1972.

Categories of records in the system: Contains ID number, name, demographic characteristics, radiation exposure history, medical history of conditions affected by radiation, and date and cause of death, if deceased.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 356 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 263d) as amended by Pub. L. 90-602, the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Records may be matched with outside agencies/educational institutions to obtain additional epidemiological, medical, and mortality information,

Information may be exchanged with qualified research scientists engaged in research involving radiation effects epidemiology.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Maintained in letter-size manila folders, magnetic tape, and punch cards.

Retrievability: Indexed by ID number. An individual identifier index is maintained separate from the data. Used for statistical analysis of compiled data for epidemiologic studies of long term effects of chronic exposure to low levels of ionizing radiation.

Safeguards: Basic data identified by number only are stored in unlocked cabinets in a secured file area. The individual identifier index is stored in a locked cabinet.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained as long as there is a foreseeable need for additional research and data analysis.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Biometric Section, Division of Biological Effects, Bureau of Radiological Health, Rm. 38, Twinbrook Research Laboratory, 12709 Twinbrook Pkwy., Rockville, MD 20852. Mailing address: 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857.

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, Page 15629.).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.50), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, Page 15631.).

Record source categories: Individual on whom the record is maintained and death certificates.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None

System name: Science Advisor Research Associate Program (SARAP)--HEW/FDA/HFO.

Security classification: None.

System location: Field Sciences Branch, Division of Field Operations, Executive Director of Regional Operations, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Categories of individuals covered by the system: FDA field personnel who have applied to participate in full-time research effort under the program.

Categories of records in the system: Contains name, curriculum vitae, description of research proposal, budget, and statement of career goals.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Guidelines for Implementation and Operation of the Science Advisor Research Associate Program and Field Research Program, dated July 1, 1974.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Not released outside the agency, except disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Maintained in letter-size manila folders.

Retrievability: Indexed by name, used to monitor the progress of research objectives of approved individual SARAP research projects. Used by the SARAP Committee and knowledgeable persons in the specific field. Released on a need-to-know basis to authorized personnel.

Safeguards: Files are maintained in secured file containers or in secured file area.

Retention and disposal: Records are presently retained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Field Sciences Branch, Division of Field Operations, Executive Director of Regional Operations, (HFO-130), Rm. 13-86, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, page 15629.).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. 09-10-0008

System name: Radiation Protection Program Personnel Monitoring System--HEW/FDA/HFX.

Security classification: None.

System location: Division of Radioactive Materials and Nuclear Medicine, Bureau of Radiological Health, Rm. 320, Chapman Bldg., 1901 Chapman Ave., Rockville, MD 20857, and a selected qualified contractor who provides thermoluminescent badge service on an annual bid basis.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Personnel in clinics, laboratories, hospitals, industrial plants, etc., who work with ionizing radiation sources required to be monitored by Nuclear Regulatory Commission regulations.

Categories of records in the system: Contains name, date of birth, social security account number, job code, period of exposure, effective date, and radiation exposure value.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 919 et seq.). Nuclear Regulatory Commission Regulations, 10 CFR Part 20.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Results are disclosed to employers, i.e., clinics, laboratories, etc., or employee.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Maintained in letter-size manila folders and on IBM cards.

Retrievability: Indexed by name and by facility. Used to monitor incremental and accumulated exposure to ionizing radiation for radiation protection purposes.

Safeguards: Filed in secured containers or in secured file area. Released on a need-to-know basis.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained as long as individual is a part of the program. Held 1 year in an inactive status. Held in storage thereafter indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Radiation Safety Officer, FDA, Rm. 320, Chapman Bldg. Mailing Address: 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with System name: Individual and Household Statistical Surveys and Special Studies on FDA-Regulated Products--HEW/FDA/HFA.

Security classification: None.

System location: Negotiated Contracts Branch, Rm. 5B-37, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals, specialty groups, e.g., physicians, and households participating voluntarily in FDA-sponsored surveys and studies.

Categories of records in the system: Data collected vary with each survey. Normal standard information for individuals or household members could, but not necessarily, include name, age, sex, marital status, address or locale of residence, etc. Nondemographic items would relate to experience with or opinions about a particular product.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 701(a) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Data released in statistical form only, except disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Questionnaires are filed in standard filing equipment. Statistical data are stored on magnetic tape.

Retrievability: Accessed by ID number assigned by contractor during collection process. Individual files are maintained in agency and contractor's custody until all collection procedures are completed.

Safeguards: Questionnaires are maintained in locked containers in secured area. Magnetic tapes are maintained in secure computer facility with access limited to program analysts only. All employees are subject to the restrictions, penalties, and prohibitions of applicable FDA regulations governing the confidentiality of the data.

Retention and disposal: Questionnaires are retained until all statistical problems are resolved then destroyed. Statistical records are maintained as long as they can be used validly.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Negotiated Contracts Branch, (HFA-510), Rm. 5B-37 Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, Page 15629.).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.50), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, Page 15631.).

Record source categories: Individual on whom the record is maintained or patient's medical records, depending on the type of survey or study.

System name: Bioresearch Monitoring Information System--HEW/FDA/HFD.

Security classification: None.

System location: Division of Scientific Investigations, Bureau of Drugs, Rm. 8-81, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Clinical investigators who are conducting or have conducted clinical studies of new drugs under investigational new drug exemption requests.

Categories of records in the system: Automated file is maintained on all clinical investigators; contains name, education, professional qualifications, and background, and information on studies being conducted. Manual file contains, in addition to that same information, investigatory material collected or developed by FDA, during investigations of possible violations of statutes and regulations governing new drug studies.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 505(i)(3), Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 355(i)(3)); 21 CFR Part 312 (New drugs for investigational use).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records that indicate violation or potential violation of law may be (1) referred for investigation and possible enforcement action under the Federal, State, or foreign laws to the Department of Justice, an appropriate State food and drug enforcement agency or licensing authority, or the government of a foreign country where studies are being or have been conducted, or (2) disclosed in administrative or court proceedings.

Records in the system may be (1) the subject of discretionary disclosures under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 522) where the Commissioner finds the public interest in disclosure outweighs the impact on the investigator's personal privacy, or (2) disclosed to drug companies seeking information on whether a given investigator is qualified to receive investigational drugs.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Three hundred to five hundred files compiled of investigations of possible violations of statutes and regulations are maintained in letter-size manila folders. Automated file (approximately 30,000 investigators) is maintained on magnetic tape.

Retrievability: Indexed by name, used to provide controls to assure that investigators meet requirements of statute or regulations.

Safeguards: All files, including printout and computer output microfilm, are stored in locked cabinets in secured area. For computerized records, safeguards established in accordance with Department standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines (e.g. security codes) will be used, limiting access to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal: Records output from the system for referenced printout or computer output microfilm are retained for one update cycle, or quarterly. Disposal of records is accomplished through a disintegrator.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Division of Scientific

Investigations (HFD-180), Bureau of Drugs, Rm. 8-81, Parklawn Bldg., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Notification procedure: FDA Privacy Coordinator (HFI-30), Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure (some material is exempt from access and contest). Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.40), published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, Page 15629.).

Contesting record procedures: Write to the official at the address specified under 'Notification Procedure' above and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with FDA Regulations (21 CFR 21.50) published in the Federal Register, March 22, 1977, Page 15631.).

Record source categories: Individual on whom the record is maintained. Some material is obtained from third parties, e.g., drug companies, publications, or is developed by FDA.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system is exempt from access and contest and certain other provisions of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d)(1) to (4), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G) to (H) and (f) to the extent that it includes investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, including criminal law enforcement purposes.

System name: Certified Retort Operators--HEW/FDA/HFF.

Security classification: None.

System location: Division of Food Technology, Bureau of Foods, Rm. 4029, FB-8, 200 C St., SW, Washington, DC 20204.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Food industry employees who have attended courses of instruction relating to operation of retorts.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 404 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 344); 21 CFR 128b.10.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records showing that low-acid canned food establishment did not have canning operations under the supervision of certified retort operator may be (1) referred for investigation and possible enforcement action against the company and responsible officials, to the Department of Justice, or appropriate State food and drug law enforcement agencies, or (2) disclosed in administrative or court proceedings.

Most records in the system may be disclosed (1) under the Freedom of Information Act (5U.S.C. 522), or (2) a food company may be advised whether an individual has satisfied FDA requirements.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Maintained in standard filing equipment and magnetic tape.

Retrievability: Indexed by name, used to ascertain program progress.

Safeguards: Magnetic tapes are stored in locked containers in secured area. Individual printouts/original hard copy records are stored in regular administrative files, maintained in secured file area or secured file containers.

Retention and disposal: Retained indefinitely.

Security classification: None.

System location:
Histocompatibility Laboratory, Division of Blood and Blood Products
Bureau of Biologics
Food and Drug Administration
8800 Rockville Pike
Bethesda, Md. 20014

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Volunteer blood donors and patients of the National Naval Medical Center and the National Institutes of Health Clinical Center requiring tissue typing who also volunteer to be part of the system.

Categories of records in the system: Records contain name, address, phone number, sex, race, age, disease (if any), number of pregnancies, number of children, and the results of blood typing.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Public Health Service Act, section 351, 42 U.S.C. 262, which requires that all biologic products intended for human use must meet certain safety, purity and potency standards.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: On occasion, the National Institutes of Health Clinical Center and the National Naval Medical Center request that the Bureau perform tissue typing for their patients. In these instances, it is, of course, necessary to provide the physician involved with precise data to properly identify the patient.

Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual.

Disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of the Public Health Service in connection with such individual (Appendix B, Departmental Regulations (45 CFR Part 5b, Item 100)).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Standard filing equipment, magnetic tapes, and disks.

Retrievability: Usually by an assigned 'cell number.' Also, alphabetically, by name. The purpose of this system of records is to provide data to be used in evaluating histocompatibility testing sera submitted by manufacturers for approval and release on the market. These records will be used only within the Agency. Any statistical data developed from the records and subsequent tissue typing may be distributed upon request, but will contain no specific reference to the individuals whose records are on file.

Safeguards: Forms in locked filing equipment. Tapes and disks in secure computer facility with access limited to individuals having knowledge of 'password' which is changed periodically.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained indefinitely.

Associate Directorate for Compliance
Bureau of Drugs
Food and Drug Administration
5600 Fishers Lane
Rockville, Md. 20857

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Cancer patients and their medical doctors who supervise the Laetrille treatment.

Categories of records in the system: A separate index card will be established for each terminal cancer patient and each medical practitioner, containing their name and complete address. The patient index card will also contain the name of the patient's doctor and the import entry number(s) covered by the affidavit. The doctor's card will list all patients by import entry number. The patient's card may contain other information, such as the discontinuance of the patient from the program, phone numbers, change of doctors, or any other information as appropriate to facilitate compliance with Federal court orders which permitted the importation of an unapproved experimental drug, Laetrile, upon a notarized affidavit that a cancer patient will receive it under the supervision of a doctor of medicine. Copies of the affidavits are received at the Bureau of Drugs; each affidavit contains the names of the patient and doctor, and usually the address of both.

Authority for maintenance of the system: The Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. 372.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records that indicate violation or potential violation of law may be (1) referred for investigation and possible enforcement action under the Federal, State, or foreign laws to the Department of Justice, an appropriate State food and drug enforcement health agency or licensing authority, or the government of a foreign country or (2) disclosed in administrative or court proceedings.

Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: On index cards in boxes.

Retrievability: Alphabetically, by name. The index cards will be used to record information from affidavits and then be used to spot check compliance with the court order concerning Laetrile.

Safeguards: Index cards will be kept in the work area of the Litigation and Recall Staff. This area is locked outside of normal working hours and accessible only by authorized personnel during working hours.

Retention and disposal: No longer than 3 years after the system is established; disposal will be made by shredding or tearing and dumping the residue into trash containers.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Records are maintained for individuals who forward a request for information directly to the Commissioner of the Social Security Administration and for individuals whose requests to members of Congress, the President, etc. are forwarded to the Commissioner for response.

Categories of records in the system: Information is maintained in the system solely to aid in the control of correspondence through the various processing steps. Information in the records includes the following: name of individual involved, social security number (if given), name of third party inquirer (if present), type of correspondence, organizational component having initial responsibility for the inquiry, Congressman's name (if a congressional inquiry), address-to-code (official to whom inquiry is directed, signature code,official to whom inquriy is directed, signature code (official whose name will appear on the reply) computer identification code (10 digit code cross referred to the name of the individual), subject matter code, location of information (component within the Social Security Administration that received the inquiry and date of receipt), and response information (type and date of Social Security Administration response).

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sections 205(a) and 1631 of the Social Security Act, and Section 413 of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act (Black Lung).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

1. to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.
2. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained on magnetic tape and computer discs.

Retrievability: The system is indexed by both name and by computer identification number, which are cross-referred. It is used to control processing of correspondence within the Social Security Administration Central Office Complex and the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals in Arlington, Virginia, and to provide management information regarding the correspondence process.

Safeguards: Magnetic tape and disc files are protected through standard security measures used for all of the Social Security Administration's computer records. Paper records are subject to the same safeguards as all other information in the Social Security Administration relating to claims and beneficiary records--limited access to social security offices, limited employee access to those that have a need to know; all employees receive instruction in Social Security Administration confidentiality rules in an initial orientation. Guidelines contained in the FIPS PUB 41, Computer Security Guidelines for Implementing the Privacy Act of 1974; FIPS PUB 31, Guidelines for Automatic Data Processing Physical Security and Risk Management, and FIPS PUB 3, ADP System Security Required by the Privacy Act of 1974, were taken into account in development of these safeguards.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained on-line in the system from the time of control until 13 months after the final response is released. Tape records are then maintained on magnetic tape for an additional 24 months before being erased.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Claimants - Titles II, XVI, XVIII, and Black Lung.

Categories of records in the system: When present, the hearing file generally contains: request for hearing, notice of hearing, 'Appearance at Hearing' Card signed by claimant, correspondence to claimant, representative, or other source of evidence, cassette recordings of hearing, HA-503 card (case control device), decision (or dismissal order), and any material otherwise in an Appeals File. The hearing file (when present) may also contain the following information which is otherwise maintained as attorney fee file: attorney fee petition involving 1500 or more, or filed after Appeals Council action on a claim, Attorney Fee Analyst recommendation, fee authorization order, related correspondence, and control card.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sections 205, 1631(d)

1. , and 1872 of the Social Security Act, as amended, and Section 413(b) of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

1. to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

2. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

3. To applicants, claimants, beneficiaries, other than the subject individual, authorized representatives, experts, and other participants at a hearing to the extent necessary to pursue a claim or other matter on appeal.

4. Attorney to the extent necessary to dispose of an attorney fee petition.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Hearing file folder in filing cabinets (when active). Attorney fee file control card in and filing container and paper folder on filing shelves.

Retrievability: Name and social security number. In the appeals process, the hearing file was a working file for individual cases rising to the hearing level. It was created and retained in the hearing office until final action by the presiding officer, and then retained in the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals central office until all appellate actions were completed. Preparation of new hearing files was discontinued as of May 30, 1975. Hearing files prepared prior to that date are still used, when available, by bureau employees at all appropriate work stations.

Attorney fee records, which were previously retained in the hearing file, became separately maintained after hearing file use was discontinued, and are used to process attorney fee petitions and to respond to correspondence and other inquiries.

Safeguards: Access to and use of these records are limited to those persons whose official duties require such access.

Retention and disposal: After all actions are completed, hearing file forwarded to Federal Record Center. Attorney fee file folder destroyed after 2 years, control card after 5 years.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Each DDS Maintains its own records and the method of storage may vary from State to State. Generally, the information is on a file card maintained in a standard card file cabinet.

Retrievability: Records are filed alphabetically and are retrieved manually by authorized personnel. DDS personnel utilize this information when considering the need for additional medical evidence in claims under Titles II and XVI of the Social Security Act or Title IV of the Federal Coal Miners Health and Safety Act.

Safeguards: Only authorized Disability Determination Services personnel have access to these records. Personal information other than the name of the physician is subject to the disclosure restrictions of 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(6), 21 U.S.C. 1175, and 42 U.S.C. 1306.

Retention and disposal: Disability Determination Services policy as to retention and disposal varies from State to State, but generally, the file is purged upon death, retirement, or relocation of the physician.

System manager(s) and address: Assistant Regional Commissioner, Disability Insurance at the address shown in Appendix B

Notification procedure: Inquiries and requests by individuals should be addressed to:

Disability Determination Services Administrator
Disability Determination Services
C/O State in which the individual resides and/or information is likely to be maintained.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.5(a)(2)) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47410.).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.7) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.).

Record source categories: Most information is obtained directly from the physician. Observations of Disability Determination Services personnel about the physician, such as a doctor's general promptness in filing reports, may occasionally be found in a physician's file.

System name: Claims Folders and Post-Adjudicative Records of Applicants and Beneficiaries for Social Security Administration Benefits HEW SSA OPO.

Security classification: None

System location: Retirement and Survivors Insurance Claims: Claims folders are maintained primarily in the Program Service Centers and the Division of International Operations (see Appendix A). Disability Insurance Claims: Disabled Insurance person under age 62 - Bureau of Disability Insurance (see Appendix B) or DIO (see Appendix A). Disabled person age 62 or older - RSI Program Service Center or DIO (see Appendix A). Black Lung Claims: Bureau of Disability Insurance (see Appendix B). Supplemental Security Income Claims: Claims folders are maintained in the Chicago Federal Archives Records Center.

In addition, claims folders are transferred to numerous other locations throughout the Social Security Administration, and the General Service Administration infrequently may be temporarily transferred to other Federal agencies (Department of Justice, or Office of the General Counsel, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare). The disability claims folders are also transferred to State agencies for disability and vocational rehabilitation determinations (see Appendix B). The claims folders are generally set up in district or branch offices when claims for benefits are filed. They are retained there until all development has been completed, then are transferred to the appropriate reviewing office as set out above. Supplemental security income claims folders are held in district or branch offices pending establishment of a payment record, or until the appeal period, in a denied claim situation, has expired. The folders are then transferred to a folder-staging facility in Chicago prior to transfer to the Chicago Federal Archives Records Center. For district or branch office information, see Appendix F.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Claimants for retirement, survivors, disability, health insurance, or black lung benefits or supplemental security income payments.

Categories of records in the system: The claims folder is established when a claim for benefits is filed. It contains applications for benefits, earnings record information established and maintained by the Social Security Administration, documents supporting factors of entitlement and continuing eligibility, payment documentation, and correspondence to and from claimants and/or representatives. It may also contain data collected as a result of inquiries or complaints; and evaluation and measurement study of effectiveness of claims policies. Separate files may be maintained of certain actions which are entered directly into the computer processes. These relate to reports of changes of address, work status, and other post-adjudicative reports.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Payment of benefits is directed by the following sections: Sections 202-205, 223, 226, 228, 1611, 1631, 1818, 1836, and 1840 of the Social Security Act and Section 411 of the Federal Coal Mine and Health Safety Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Routine uses for disclosure may be to:

a. Third party contacts by the Social Security Administration (without the consent of the individual to whom the information pertains) in situations where the party to be contacted has, or is expected to have, information relating to the individual's capability to manage his affairs or his eligibility for or entitlement to benefits under the social security program when:
(1) The individual is unable to provide the information being sought (an individual is considered to be unable to provide certain types of information when any of the following conditions exist: individual is incapable or of questionable mental capability, cannot read or write, cannot afford the cost of obtaining the information, a language barrier exists, or the custodian of the information will not, as a matter of policy, provide it to the individual), or
(2) The data are needed to establish the validity of evidence or to verify the accuracy of information presented by the individual, and it concerns one or more of the following: the individual's eligibility to benefits under a social security program; the amount of a benefit payment; any case in which the evidence is being reviewed as a result of suspected abuse or fraud, concern for program integrity, or for quality appraisal, or evaluation and measurement system activities.

b. Third party contacts by the Social Security Administration where necessary to establish or verify information provided by representative payees or payee applicants.

c. A person (or persons) on the rolls when a claim is filed by an individual which is adverse to the person on the rolls; that is:
(1) An award of benefits to a new claimant precludes an award to a prior claimant; or
(2) An award of benefits to a new claimant will reduce the benefit payments to the individual(s) on the rolls; but only for information concerning the facts relevant to the interests of each party in a claim.

d. Employers or former employers for correcting or reconstructing earnings records and for social security tax purposes only.

e. The Treasury Department for collecting social security taxes or as otherwise pertinent to tax and benefit payment provisions of the Social Security Act, (including social security number verification services) and for investigating alleged theft, forgery, or unlawful negotiation of social security checks.

f. The United States Postal Service for investigating alleged forgery or theft of social security checks.

g. The Department of Justice for investigating and prosecuting violations of the Social Security Act to which criminal penalties attach, for representing the Secretary, and for investigating issues of fraud by agency officers or employees, or violation of civil rights.

j. The Veterans' Administration for the purpose of administering 38 U.S.C. 412, and, upon request, of information needed for determining eligibility for or amount of VA benefits or verifying other information with respect thereto.

k. The Department of Labor for administering provisions of Title IV of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act.

l. State social security administrators for administration of agreements pursuant to section 218 (State and local).

m. State Welfare Departments for administering Sections 205(c)(2)(B)(i)(II) and 402(a)(25) of the Social Security Act requiring information about assigned social security numbers for Aid to Families with Dependent Children program purposes only.

n. State Welfare Departments pursuant to agreements with the Social Security Administration for administration of State supplementation payments, for determinations of eligibility for Medicaid per section 1634, and for enrollment of welfare recipients for medical insurance under Section 1843 of the Social Security Act, and for conducting independent quality assurance reviews of supplemental security income recipient records, provided that the agreement for federal administration of the supplementation provides for such an independent review.

o. State Vocational Rehabilitation agency, or State crippled children's service agency (or another agency providing services to disabled children) for consideration of rehabilitation services per U.S.C. and 1382d.

p. State audit agencies for auditing State supplementation payments and Medicaid eligibility considerations, and expenditures of Federal funds by the State in support of the Disability Determination Section (DDS).

q. Private medical and vocational consultants for use in making preparation for, or evaluating the results of, consultative medical examinations or vocational assessments which they were engaged to perform by the Social Security Administration or a State agency acting in accord with sections 221 or 1633.

r. Specified business and other community members and Federal, State, and local agencies for verification of eligibility for benefits under section 1631(e).

s. Institutions or facilities approved for treatment of drug addicts or alcoholics as a condition of the individual's eligibility for payment under section 1611e and as authorized by regulations issued by the Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention.

t. To applicants, claimants, prospective applicants or claimants, other than the data subject, their authorized representatives or representative payees to the extent necessary to pursue social security claims and receive an account of benefit payments.

u. To a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

v. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

w. In response to legal process or interrogatories relating to the enforcement of an individual's child support or alimony obligations, as required by sections 459 and 461 of the Social Security Act.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Claims folders are maintained in file cabinets by service area as set out in Location above.

Retrievability: Filed in numerical sequence by social security number. The folders are used throughout the Social Security Administration for the purposes of determining, organizing, and maintaining documents for making normal determination as to eligibility to benefits, the amount of benefits, reviewing continuing eligibility, holding hearings or administrative review processes, and to ensure that proper adjustments are made based on events affecting entitlement. The folder may be referred to State Disability Determination Sections or Vocational Rehabilitation Agencies in disability cases. They may also be used for quality review, evaluation, and measurement studies, and other statistical and research purposes.

The claims folder constitutes the basic record for payments and determinations under the Social Security Act and the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act (black lung). Data are used to produce and maintain the master beneficiary record system (see Systems Notice) which is the automated payment system for retirement, survivors, and disability benefits; the supplemental security income automated system for the aged, blind, and disabled payments; the black lung payment process for black lung claims; and the Health Insurance and Billing and Collection Master record systems for Hospital and supplementary medical (medicare) insurance benefits.

This paper file is controlled by the Social Security Administration Claims Control System while the claim is pending development for adjudication in the district or branch office, and by the Case Control System once the folder has been transferred to the reviewing office (program service centers, Division of International Operations, or the Bureau of Disability Insurance).

Safeguards: Claims folders are protected through limited access to Social Security Administration records, limited employee access to need to know. All employees are instructed in Social Security Administration confidentiality rules as a part of their initial orientation training.

Retention and disposal: The claims folder is initially maintained in the reviewing office. Later, both active and inactive folders are transferred to the Federal Archives and Records Center for storage and inactive (no one is entitled to benefits) folders are scheduled for destruction. The time for retention prior to destruction is 5-year retention - no record of surviving potential beneficiaries; 20-year retention - withdrawn claims, claims disallowed or lump-sum death payments only, and 55-year retention - potential future claimants indicated in the file. When a subsequent claim is filed on the social security number, the claims file is recalled from the Records Center. Similarly, the claims files may be recalled from the Records Center at any time by the Social Security Administration as necessary in the administration of the social security programs.

r. Contractors under contract to the Social Security Administration or under contract to another agency with funds provided by the Social Security Administration for the performance of research and statistical activities directly relating to the Social Security Act.

s. The Department of Labor, for statistical studies of the relationship of private pensions and social security benefits to prior earnings.

t. In the event litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

u. In response to legal process or interrogatories relating to the enforcement of an individual's child support or alimony obligations, as required by sections 459 and 461 of the Social Security Act.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic tape, magnetic disk, microfilm, and paper.

Retrievability: Based on social security number on magnetic tape, disk, microfilm readers and printers, listings, and online computer terminals. Master beneficiary record data are used by a broad range of social security employees for responding to inquiries, generating followups on beneficiary reporting events, computer exception processing, statistical studies, conversion of benefits, and to generate payment records for Treasury. Data are received from the States regarding health insurance third party premium payment/buy-in information. Data are made available to the Inspector General for use in the performance of his duties.

Safeguards: All magnetic tapes and discs are within an enclosure attended by security guards. Anyone entering or leaving this enclosure must have special badges which are issued only to authorized personnel. All microfilm and paper files are accessible only by authorized personnel with a need to know. For computerized records, electronically transmitted between Central Office and field office locations (including organizations administering SSA programs under contractual agreements), systems securities are established in accordance with Departmental standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines. Safeguards include a lock/unlock password system, exclusive use of leased telephone lines, a terminal oriented transaction matrix, and an audit trail.

Retention and disposal: Magnetic tape records are used to update the disc files and then are retained up to 90 days; the majority of magnetic tape reels are erased and returned to stock after processing is completed, while the disc files are continuously updated and retained indefinitely. Microfilm is disposed of by shredding after periodic replacement. of a complete file. Paper records are usually destroyed after use, by shredding, except where needed for documentation of the claims folder, in which case they are retained therein indefinitely (see notices for claims folders and post-adjudicative records of applicants and beneficiaries for social security benefits).

System location:

Bureau of Data Processing
6401 Security Boulevard
Baltimore, Maryland 21235

Categories of individuals covered by the system: A control record is established when a claim(s) for Retirement, Survivors, Disability, and/or Health Insurance Benefits is filed on a particular social security number (SSN). Only one record is established for each social security number even though more than one claim may be filed simultaneously--e.g., claims for the wage earner, his wife, and children on one social security number.

Categories of records in the system: The record content is: social security number and wage earner's name; the date the application was filed--for a few cases it is not included because it is not known when the record is established; the type of action--i.e., Retirement, Survivors, Disability, and/or Health Insurance Benefits; the potential month of entitlement--for monthly benefits this will be the first month for which benefits may be paid; the code for the district office that processed the application; the district office that released the claim to the State agency or program center; the present location of the claim; the date the claim was released by one office and received by another.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 205q of the Social Security Act--This provision necessitates a systems control of claims to ensure payment within prescribed time pars.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic tape and disk for online and offline retrieval.

Retrievability: Indexed by social security number. This record system is used to control claims from the point they originate in a district office until they are finally processed to completion and enables the Administration to identify those claims for which inordinate delays occur. Once identified, expeditious processing is initiated. Moreover, the data present in the system is useful in the reconstruction of a claim if the application were to be lost.

Safeguards: Magnetic tape and disk records protected through standard security measures used for all SSA's computer records--limited access to Social Security Administration offices--limited employee access to computer facilities based on specific authorization. For computerized records, electronically transmitted between Central Office and field office locations (including organizations administering SSA programs under contractual agreements), systems securities are established in accordance with Departmental standards and National Bureau of Standards guidelines. Safeguards include a lock/unlock password system, exclusive use of leased telephone lines, a terminal oriented transaction matrix, and an audit trail.

Retention and disposal: The records on the magnetic tapes are purged when the decision of award or disallowance is made on the social security number or at 1 year from the date the record is established, whichever occurs first. The old versions of tapes are erased and returned to stock. The disk files are continuously updated and retained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance
6401 Security Boulevard
Baltimore, Maryland 21235

Notification procedure: Contact the most convenient social security office (see Appendix F). The social security claim number (social security number plus alphabetic symbols) and name and address must be furnished with proper identification.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedure. The data in this system are extremely limited since the system is a mechanism used by the agency to control and expedite the processing of claims. Requesters, referencing the system, should provide name, social security number, approximate date and place claim was filed, type of claim (retirement, survivors, disability, or health insurance), and return address or phone number. (These access procedures are in accordance with Departmental Regulations (45 CFR , Section 56,5(a)(2)).

Contesting record procedures: It is maintained that little of the data in this system is contestible; however, should an individual wish to contest it upon review, he may discuss the matter with the staff of the the social security office specified under notification procedures above. If he decides to contest, he should reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR,Sec. 5b.7 Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411).

Record source categories: The data are derived from the information furnished by the claimant on his application and by control data that is received as the claim is sent from the district office to other social security offices.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

System name: Automated Control System for Case Folders HEW SSA OPO.

Security classification: None

System location: Program Service Centers (See Appendix A), Division of International Operations, Bureau of Disability Insurance (See Appendix B).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All claimants who have a social security number, have filed a claim under Titles II, retirement, survivors, and disability insurance; XVI, supplemental security income, and XVIII, health insurance, of the Social Security Act, and whose claims have been processed through to a decision of award, disallowance, withdrawal, or termination such claims are in the adjudication process for reaching the aforementioned decisions.

Categories of records in the system: A control record by social security number containing data relative to the location of the claim serviced by one of the offices maintaining jurisdictional responsibility. Whether the claims folder is maintained in that office, temporarily or permanently transferred to another office within the Social Security Administration, a State disability, or vocational rehabilitation agency, or for storage in a Federal Records Center.

Authority for maintenance of the system: The payment provisions of the Social Security Act and Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, Sections 202, 223, 226, 228, 1611, 1631, 1818, and 1836 of the Social Security Act and 411 of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act. The information for this system is derived from the claims filing process and duplicates, in fact, that set out in the Claims Folder Systems Notice.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic disk storage files and magnetic tape files.

Retrievability: Social security number. The record system is used by the offices to identify the location of claims as well as enabling them to associate and process incoming material in a timely fashion. The identification and exact location feature assists Social Security Administration in meeting the standards of service to the public in processing and deciding claims for benefits. Data are also used to identify where operating weaknesses are to facilitate corrective action by management. Management data is also derived from the control records to provide statistical data relative to workloads, staffing, and manpower usage.

Safeguards: Disk and tape files protected through standard security measures used for all of Social Security Administration's computer records--limited access to social security offices, and limited employee access to computer facilities based on specific authorizations.

Retention and disposal: The control records are maintained indefinitely. No provisions have been made to dispose of the control records nor is any contemplated as of now. When disk files are rewritten, the old disks are erased and returned to stock.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: This system contains records of all retirement, survivors, disability, or health insurance beneficiaries entitled to hospital insurance and/or supplementary medical insurance who are, or have been, subject to direct billing for insurance premiums. This includes individuals who: (1) are currently being billed directly for insurance premiums; (2) are not currently in direct billing status but have either a premium arrearage (or overpayment) of record or were at one time in direct billing status. It does not contain a record of any hospital or supplementary medical insurance enrollee who has had premiums deducted from monthly benefits or paid through a third party payer arrangement continuously from the initial month of entitlement.

Categories of records in the system: It contains identifying information as well as information regarding entitlement to hospital or supplementary medical insurance, current address information, individual records of premium payments, premium adjustments, refunds of excess payments, and current amounts due.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sections 1840(e) and 1871 of the Social Security Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Primary record storage is by magnetic tape and disk. Monthly updates of the record are also provided to the Social Security Administration program service centers, the Division of International Operations, Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance, and the Division of Benefit Payments, Bureau of Disability Insurance in microform records.

Retrievability: Magnetic tape, disk and microform records are indexed by social security number, or claim account number. It is used to: (1) generate monthly and quarterly premium billing notices; (2) record and process premium payments and adjustments; (3) refund excess premium payments; (4) terminate hospital and/or supplementary medical insurance coverage for non-payment of premiums; (5) reverse termination actions; (6) maintain a history of premium payments, adjustments, or other events which alter the billing status; (7) provide up-to-date premium and billing information to Social Security Administration clerical and electronic operations. Information is used to respond to specific beneficiary inquiries or to facilitate the proper adjustment of social security benefit payments. Information is also accessed electronically by social security benefit programs for the proper adjustment of payment amounts.

Safeguards: Magnetic tape, and disk records are protected through standard security measures used for all of Social Security Administration's computer records; microform records are subject to the same rules and security as all other information in Social Security Administration relating to claims and beneficiary records; limited access to Social Security Administration offices; limited employee access to need to know.

Retention and disposal: Microfilm and tape records can routinely be sent to the Federal Records Center after 2 years. However, since this record is updated monthly, even though the physical records are released to the Federal Records Center, current record will contain full history of all transactions. An inactive tape file, i.e., a file containing the records of cases where the enrollee has died, been in payment status for 2 or more years, etc., is maintained in each program service center. This file currently has no disposal schedule.

are maintained at each district or branch office (see Appendix F).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All social security beneficiaries who received an overpayment of benefits. All persons holding conserved (accumulated) funds received on behalf of a social security beneficiary. All persons who received social security payments on behalf of a beneficiary and were found to have misused those payments.

Categories of records in the system: Identifying characteristics of each overpayment or instance of misused or conserved funds. Name and address of the individual(s) involved. Recovery efforts made and the date of each action. Planned future actions.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 204(a) of the Social Security Act (42 United States Code 404(a)).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic tape, magnetic disk and microfiche in the Bureau of Data Processing. Microfiche in program service centers, the Bureau of Disability Insurance and the Division of International Operations. Paper listings in district and branch offices.

Retrievability: Magnetic tape, magnetic disk and microfiche indexed by social security number. The users of this system are employees of social security district and branch offices, as well as selected personnel of the Social Security Administration Program Service Centers, the Bureau of Disability Insurance, and the Division of International Operations. The data are used to maintain control of overpayments and misused or conserved funds from the time of discovery to the final resolution and for the proper adjustments of payment and refund amounts. Data also used to produce accounting and statistical reports at specified intervals.

Safeguards: Magnetic tape, magnetic disk, microfiche and paper records are protected through standard security measures used for all of the Social Security Administration's records--limited access to Social Security Administration offices--limited access to files to employees on a need to know basis.

Retention and disposal: Magnetic tape files are updated daily and retained for 10 days, after which the tapes are erased and returned to stock. The magnetic tape file produced in the last operation of the month is retained in security storage for a period of 30 days, after which the tapes are erased and returned to storage. The microfiche records are updated monthly, retained for one month after the month they are produced, and then destroyed by application of heat. Paper listings are destroyed when overpayment issue is resolved or updated listing is received. The disk files are continuously updated and retained indefinitely.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All social security health and supplemental medical insurance enrollees who received incorrect medicare payments or services, who are determined liable, and against whom it is not possible to adjust subsequent Part A (Hospital) or Part B (Supplementary Medical) benefits.

Categories of records in the system: A clerical record of each overpaid medicare benefit, name and address of the individual(s) involved. Recovery efforts made and the date of each action. Planned future actions.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sections 1814, 1833 and 1870 of the Social Security Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Card stock in metal cabinets.

Retrievability: By social security number. The users of this system are selected employees of both social security program service centers as well as Division of International Operations and Bureau of Disability Insurance. The information recorded by the program service centers is used to maintain control of medicare overpayments referred to the program service center from Health Care Financing Administration for recovery action. In these cases, Health Care Financing Administration is unable to recoup the overpayment by adjusting subsequent medicare benefits. The information on the ledger cards is also used to produce periodic accounting, management, and statistical reports.

Safeguards: Records protected through standard security means for all of the Social Security Administration's clerical records, limited access to buildings and limited access by employees on a need to know basis.

Retention and disposal: Retained in the program service center for a period of one year after collection efforts terminated and then transferred to the Federal Records Center where they are retained for 3 years, then destroyed.

Copies of individual files are also maintained by the district or branch office at which an inquiry of this nature originates (see Appendix F).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Social security beneficiaries or persons inquiring on their behalf who are reporting failure to receive a check or checks which they believe are due or are inquiring about other matters which have been determined to be of a critical or sensitive nature (e.g., failure to receive a check).

Categories of records in the system: The name and social security number of the individual and identifying information about the source of the inquiry (e.g., the individual, congressman, authorized representatives), the problem involved, and its subsequent resolution.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 205(q) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 405(q)).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

1. to the inquirer; may include contact with the Treasury Department to determine if payment was issued or check returned for cash.

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(3) Respond to the inquirer.

(4) The Treasury Department to determine if payment was issued or check returned for cash.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Control cards and inquiry sheets; copies of letters to individuals or persons writing on their behalf (e.g., congressmen, authorized representatives) advising them of the resolution of their inquiries.

Retrievability: By name and/or social security number. The users of this system are selected employees of social security program service centers, the Division of International Operations, and field offices. The information is used to issue a check to a beneficiary who reports failure to receive a check or checks which he believes is due tor to expedite action on other requests of a critical or sensitive nature.

Safeguards: The control records are subject to the same rules and safeguards as all other information in Social Security Administration relating to claims and beneficiary records--limited access to the Social Security Administration offices, and limited employee access based on need to know.

Retention and disposal: Control cards are maintained for 6 months after which they are destroyed by shredding. Inquiry sheets are destroyed after 1 year by shredding. Letters are maintained for 2 years and then destroyed by shredding, except those originating in the program service centers and the Division of International Operations. They are maintained in the claims folder as part of the file. District and branch office copies are destroyed after the investigation has been completed.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons suspected of having violated the criminal provisions of the Social Security Act where substantial basis for criminal prosecution exists, and defendants in criminal prosecution cases.

Categories of records in the system: Information maintained in each record includes the identity of the suspect, the nature of the alleged offense, documentation of the investigation into the alleged offense, and the disposition of the case by the Social Security Administration or the United States Attorney.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sections 206, 208, 221, 222, 1106, 1107, 1631(d)(3), 1632, 1633, 1816, 1842, 1872, 1874, 1876, 1877 of the Social Security Act, and sections 413 and 427 of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

1. to officers or employees of State governments as well as the CHAMPUS program for use in conducting investigations of possible fraud or abuse against the title XIX or CHAMPUS programs.
2. To States Attorneys in connection with State programs involving the Social Security Administration.
3. In cases involving fraudulent tax returns or forgery of social security checks are disclosed to the Treasury Department.
4. To the U.S. Postal Service for investigating alleged forgery or the theft of social security checks.
5. To State and local police authorities for the purpose of investigating the loss, theft, and/or forgery of Medicare checks.
6. To a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.
7. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Manual system, records maintained in manila folders and stored in filing cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are indexed and retrieved by social security number or by name of the subject of the investigation. The information in this record system pertains to suspected violations and fraud investigations. Cases may move through several levels of the Social Security Administration organization at the district, regional and/or central office locations during the course of documenting a suspected fraudulent situation. Material in this system of records is routinely used by SSA staff to determine if a violation of the penal provisions of the Social Security Act or related provisions of the United States Code has been committed. If so, such material is used as the basis for referral of the case to the Department of Justice for consideration of prosecution, and is disclosed to that agency. The material is also used to determine the direction of investigation of potential fraud situations, which includes contact with third parties for the purpose of establishing or negating a violation.

Safeguards: Records are maintained in locked filing cabinets and are accessed only by employees with a job-related need for the information.

Retention and disposal: Records may be retained 3 - 5 years after final disposition of the case. At the end of the retention period, the records are destroyed by shredding. (Supplemental security income cases are scheduled for 5 year retention, all others 3 years; once experience has been gained with the former types of case, it may be possible to reduce it to 3 years.)

System manager(s) and address: For Supplemental Security Income records, the Regional Commissioner Offices (see Appendix D. 2.)

Director
Bureau of Disability Insurance
Baltimore, Maryland 21241

Director,
Bureau of Retirement and Survivor's Insurance
6401 Security Boulevard
Baltimore, Maryland 21235

Notification procedure: An individual can determine if this system contains a record pertaining to him by requesting such information in writing from the appropriate program center for retirement and survivors cases (see Appendix A); Bureau of Disability Insurance for disability, black lung, or Supplemental Security Income disabled or blind cases; Regional Commisioner Office for Supplemental Security Income (see Appendix D. 2.). The request should include the individual's name and social security number, any social security number on which he has filed for or received benefits, the type of such claim, and current claim status. An individual who requests notification of or access to a medical record shall, at the time the request is made, designate in writing a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. (These notification and access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (45 CFR, Section 5b.6) Federal Register, October 8, 1975, page 47411.).

Record access procedures: Per 5 United States Code 522a (k)(2), the records in this system are exempt from access by the individual named in the records. However, access to information which is a matter of public record or documents furnished by the individual will be permitted.

Contesting record procedures: Same.

Record source categories: The information contained in this record system is the result of criminal investigation and may be derived from such sources as the suspect, witnesses, or Social Security Administration employees with a knowledge of the case.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: Exemption of this system to the access provisions is claimed under section k(2) of the Privacy Act inasmuch as these records are investigatory materials compiled for program (law) enforcement in anticipation of a criminal proceeding. (See page 47413 of Federal Register of 10/8/75, Vol. 40, No. 196,Part V).

System name: Litigation Activity File HEW SSA OPO.

Security classification: None.

System location:

Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance
6401 Security Boulevard
Baltimore, Maryland 21235

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Plaintiffs who have filed court actions against the Secretary of HEW.

Categories of records in the system: Basically, the file is used as a reference and control vehicle for analysts involved in litigation activity. The records contain documentation concerning specific litigation cases. For example, documentation includes copies of suggested replies to interrogatories and factual summaries, copies of memoranda to implement court decisions, requests for information from Office of General Counsel and in response to the Office of General Counsel's requests for information, etc. Also included is documentation regarding telephone calls, personal contacts, and letters concerning routine activity on a particular litigation case.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 205(g) of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. 402(g).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Information is stored in file cabinets.

Retrievability: File maintained in alphabetical order by plaintiff's last name, and is used by analysts working with the Office of the General Counsel and the reviewing offices for maintaining knowledge of the status of individual court cases.

Safeguards: Limited access based on need to know.

Retention and disposal: Files are maintained until all final actions are completed. After final actions are completed, files are destroyed by shredding.

System manager(s) and address:

Director
Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance
6401 Security Boulevard

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Plaintiffs who have filed court actions against the Secretary of HEW.

Categories of records in the system: Record contains: Plaintiff's name, wage earner's name, Social Security number, the date the complaint was filed, the issue involved (e.g., plaintiff contesting HEW's date of birth determination), action taken on complaint, cross reference to litigation folder (see systems notice regarding Litigation Activity File).

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 205(g) of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. 402(g).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Cards are stored in a file cabinet.

Retrievability: They are filed alphabetically by plaintiff's last name. Also, these cards are used as reference cards and locator cards to find the litigation material.

Safeguards: Limited access to Social Security Administration offices; limited employee access based on need to know.

Retention and disposal: Never destroyed. Closed cases after litigation report is completed are placed in boxes in alphabetical order.

System manager(s) and address:

Director
Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance

(For all claims involving disability benefits, black lung and supplemental security income for the blind and disabled)

V 43 / 188 SEP 27 78 UMI

Bureau of Hearings and Appeals
801 North Randolph Street
Arlington, Virginia 22203
(For all claims that involve a hearing for disability, retirement, survivors benefits, health insurance, black lung, or supplemental security income)

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Attorneys and non-attorney representatives of claimants before the Social Security Administration.

Categories of records in the system: Name and address of representative, firm affiliation, if any, claimant's social security number, fee requested by representative, amount of fee approved by the Social Security Administration, amount withheld from claimant's past-due benefits, date the fee was approved, type of services rendered, reviewing and approving offices.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Sections 206 and 1631(d) of the Social Security Act, and section 413(b) of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The central reference files are maintained by the Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance on ledger cards, and kept in metal file cabinets. In addition, when the ledger cards are destroyed, an alphabetic listing, which is manually maintained, is prepared to indicate that the representative has appeared before the Social Security Administration in the past. The Bureaus of Disability Insurance, Health Insurance, and Supplemental Security income may maintain carbon copies of the Petition to obtain approval of a fee for representing a social security claimant. These copies, when maintained, may include a copy of the Social Security Administration's authorization to charge and receive a fee, and are filed in metal filing cabinets; in the case of the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, they are maintained in file books.

Retrievability: Records are generally indexed alphabetically by name of the representative. If the representative is an attorney and no specific name is furnished the record is filed according to the name of the firm. The Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, however, maintains its file based on social security number of the claimant.

Safeguards: Normal security measures are imposed. Only those Social Security Administration employees with a job-related need for the information can have access to the records in this system.

Retention and disposal: Ledger records are retained for a period of 5 years from the date of the latest entry. If no entries are recorded within this period the record is destroyed. When the ledger is destroyed, the name, address of the representative, and at least one social security number of an involved claim, is recorded and indexed for indefinite retention. Copies of the representatives petition are maintained in the Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance until pertinent data are transferred to the ledger cards; then the copies are destroyed by shredding. Records in the Bureaus of Disability Insurance, Supplemental Security Income, and Hearings and Appeals are maintained indefinitely.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic tape, microfiche.

Retrievability: Magnetic tape and microfiche indexed by social security number. Supplemental security income records begin in the social security district office where an individual files an application for supplemental security income payments. This application contains data which may be used to prove the identity of the applicant determine his eligibililty for SSI payments and in cases where eligibility is determined, to compute the amount of the paymeat. Information from the application in addition to data used internally to control and process SSI cases is used to create the Supplemental Security Income Record. The Supplemental Security Income Record is also used as a means of providing a historical record of all activity on a particular indi ividual. In addition, statistical data is derived from the Supplemental Security Income Record for actuarial and management information purposes.

Safeguards: All magnetic tapes are within an enclosure attended by security guards. Any one entering or leaving that enclosure must have special badges which are only issued to authorized personnel. All authorized personnel having access to the magnetic tape records are subject to the penalties of the Privacy Act. The microfiche are stored in locked cabinets.

Retention and disposal: Original input transaction tapes received which contain initial claims and posteligibility actions are retained indefinitely although these are processed as received and incorporated into processing tapes which are updated to the master supplemental security income tape file on a monthly basis. All magnetic tapes appropriate to SSI information furnished specified Federal, State, and local agencies for verification of eligibility for benefits and under section 1631 (e) are retained, in in accordance with the Privacy Act accounting requirements, for at least 5 years or the life of the record, whichever is longer.

Baltimore, Maryland 21235

Categories of individuals covered by the system: The Claims Index File contains a record for each identifying number relating to any aged, blind, or disabled individual who has applied for supplemental security income payments.

Categories of records in the system: The Claims Index File contains identifying data including type of eligibility, internal location data and social security numbers which may be used to identify a particular individual.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 1631 of Title XVI of the Social Security Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made:

(1)to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(2)In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic Tape.

Retrievability: Magnetic Tape indexed by social security number. Since many records enter the supplemental security income system under an identifying number other than the correct supplemental security income case number, the system must have the capability of locating the correct case number in order to properly process the case. The Index File provides this capability in addition to eliminating the possibility of the accretion of duplicate numbers on the supplemental security income master record.

Safeguards: The magnetic tape records are protected through standard security measures used for all computer records housed within the Social Security Administration--limited employee access to specific authorization by individual.

Retention and disposal: Magnetic tape records are maintained for an indefinite period.

(3) State audit agencies pursuant to agreements with HEW for auditing State supplementation payments.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The source document is filed in standard filing cabinets by bank deposit schedule number. The cross reference listing, in social security number sequence, by month is maintained in binders. This information is keyed directly onto tape which is kept in SSA'S tape library. The tapes are used to prepare the cross reference listings and to input the information into the system. The manual file is maintained in social security number sequence so that inquiries and refunds from district offices can be answered.

Retrievability: The file is established after the money received has been recorded and deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank. The money refunded is brokendown0 into Federal share and State share for accounting purposes. The information is input to the electronic system to be matched against the same information being entered by district offices . This serves as an audit.

Listings are referenced by social security number.

Safeguards: The source documents and listings are kept in an area which is secured at night--doors locked. Information is only furnished to other Social Security Administration components with limited access by employees on a need-to-know basis. The magnetic tapes are retained in secure storage areas accessible only to authorized persons within the Bureau of Data Processing. The storage area is controlled by marshalls responsible for insuring that only authorized personnel are admitted. Official identification badges or passes are required to gain entrance to the storage area. All employers having access to records have been notified of criminal sanctions for unauthorized disclosure of information on individuals.

Retention and disposal: The source documents and listings are being held indefinitely. Eventually they will be retired to the Federal Record Center. The tapes are stored in the Social Security tape library.
